Otis Peabody Swift writes from the executive office of Life, asking me what I think of the illustrated publication which has created somewhat of a furor in magazine production, plus explanatory footnotes. My opinion will just escape the word nil. Life is seven months old—validating credentials for the little fellow. Illustrated publications are on the up. The newspapers are drifting more and more to art, some of it exposed, some of it otherwise. When we kids slid in behind one of those low-decked school desks the teacher used to hang a lesson into the mental attic by objects. She thought we would remember it longer that way. We remember what we see when we forget what we read. Maybe that's why Life got such a spontaneous reception. The six-page essay on "Transcontinental Trucking" caught my eye, probably because it is so near home, and includes the Arizona highways. I have enjoyed Life since its first issue, and there has been no diminution of interest. Age is putting a little more strain on the optic nerve, so give me pictures for occasional relief and interest. Mr. Swift, you have a fast publication. Adios.

That party who coined the phrase "not a drink to drop," must have had at some time a slip between the cup and the lip.

Eddie Martin's airport would have been a nice spot for the Russian fliers to land, but the fog favored San Jacinto. And then it wouldn't have been so far to go to welcome the Moscow boys, who hung up a world record for long distance flying. The world is merging. Distance is disappearing; that is, if you're an airplane for contraction. Ever the North Pole is coming farther south. There might be a collision with the opposite pole some day. I should worry.

Two newsboys crying "Extra." The streamer in the paper reported the Russian fliers missing, and the other newsboy said to his competitor: "Say, the Russian fliers have landed." "I know it," replied the other lad, and he kept on selling papers.

Request for an encore comes in for the paragraph about news wagons. Source, a hotel where guests prefer to continue their slumber rather than listen to the clatter of the newsboys' wagon. Well, I've done everything except supply the rubber, and that's some other fellow's job and expense. I am sure, however, that it would be a roll in the right direction.

Sometimes some people who do not go to church have the church brought to them. At least so, spiritually speaking. That's what "Cyclone" Jackson did to a service club. It was a new kind of music and a new kind of message to some of the members. "Go ye into all the world," and then there was Jackson.

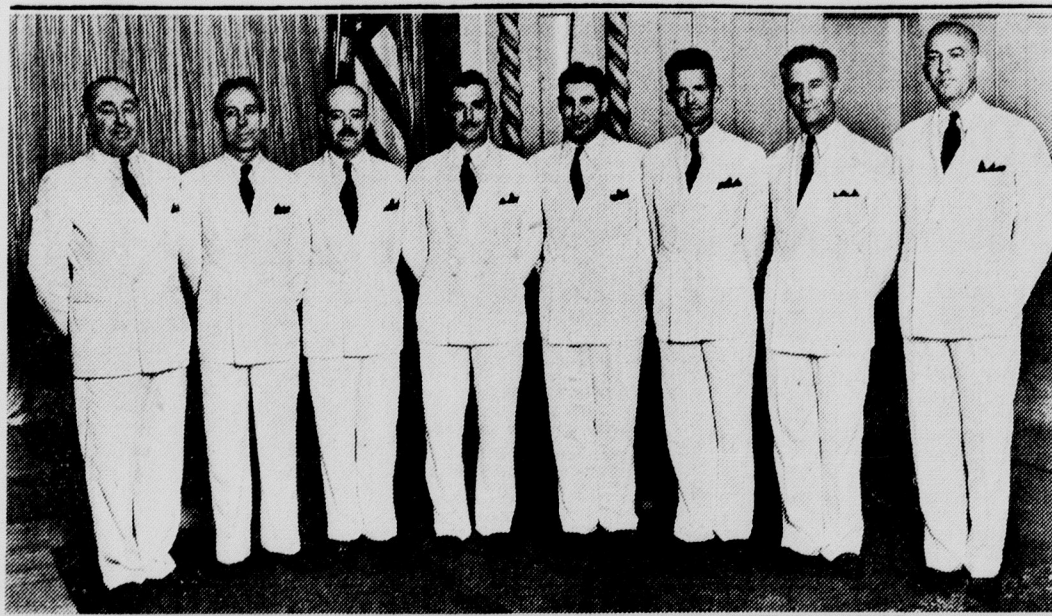

The next fellow who invites me to go fishing and agrees not to take a hook and line, will get an acceptance.

"The Death Valley Days" radio program Wednesday night biographed a sketch about Skidoo, California, now one of the ghost towns. It brought home a thistle of locale when the commentator mentioned the "Skidoo News," and the printer's devil. Names used in the narrative were fictitious to the listeners, but to F. A. Mergat, of Santa Ana, one of them had a real meaning. He was the printer's devil mentioned by the commentator, and thrilled again as the old pioneer pictured incidents of that once thriving mining town.

Dale Schmid is telling "Brink" Brinkerhoff a continued story. The installments will be resound when Brinkerhoff returns from St. Louis. It's a fish story. That's why it is in installments.

S. A. Elks Quartet Carols Way to Fame.

New honors were heaped on Santa Ana Elks' double quartet, above, today when results of competition at the grand lodge convention in Denver were announced. The Santa Ana songsters tied with the chanters of Los Angeles lodge, in national glee club competition, for first place. Members of the Elks singing aggregation, reading from left to right, are John Miller, Walter Vieira, Dr. K. H. Sutherland, Hugh Runkells, G. Willard Bassett, Fitz Gibbs, A. J. Garaway and Lyle Anderson. The Anaheim club's drum and bugle corps was disqualified for leaving the floor a minute and one-half before the rules allowed. The Santa Ana singers appeared on the opening program, on a memorial program, at leading theaters and service clubs and will appear tonight at a pageant.

FLIERS VISIT COAST CITIES

Cheered at San Diego,
Will See Hollywood

SAN DIEGO. (AP)—The three flying heroes of the Soviet Union, a non-stop record of more than 6700 miles from Moscow to San Jacinto, Calif., to their credit, started out today to inspect American airplane factories and the world's movie capital, Hollywood. The Russian conquerors of time and space, Pilot Mikhail Gromoff, Co-Pilot Andrei Yumoshoff and Navigator Sergei Danilin, motored here last night from March field, United States army base to which fog all the way down California, a cow pasture. They had battled fog all the day down California.

INSPECTOR GRABS RUSSIAN'S LEMON

SAN JACINTO. (AP)—California welcomed the Russian fliers, but not the sack of fruit they carried over the top of the world. The proud Soviet monoplane had hardly landed in a cow pasture here when a state agricultural department inspector appeared.

He entered the cramped control cabin. He spied the suspicious sack. Gingerly he extracted half of a thoroughly sucked lemon and confiscated it under the state quarantine act.

"I'm through with it," chuckled Pilot Mikhail Gromoff in Russian.

gone as far south as San Diego, and circled back. The pasture offered a long runway for a safe landing, and they shot down from the fog banks at 6:25 a. m. (P.S.T.).

The fliers were to attend a civic luncheon today, then motor to Los Angeles for a welcome from officials of the army and navy, representatives of the aircraft industries and city authorities.

PICKLE STRIKE ENDS

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—With police standing idly by, 102 employees of the H. J. Heinz company plant at Berkeley went back to work today to end a strike called Jan. 22 by Cannery Workers' union No. 20099, now a C. I. O. affiliate.

GIRL ON THE FLYING TRAPEZE DIES IN FALL FROM BIG TOP

GLASGOW, Mont. (AP)—Gladys Le Tourneau, 25-year-old circus aerialist, died in a hospital here today from a broken neck suffered July 6 in a fall from a trapeze at Wheeler, Fort Peck dam project town.

Her husband, William G. Le Tourneau, was at her bedside when she succumbed. But her friends of the circus had moved on. They were showing today at Williston, N. D.

Gentile Girl Prays for Dying Jew

GLoucester, Mass. (Special) Edward Friedland, 18-year-old Jew, lingered between life and death today while his 19 year old Gentile sweetheart, with whom he entered a suicide pact, prayed tearfully for his recovery.

Edward regained consciousness for a few minutes for the first time since he and Thelma Simmons were found near death from an overdose of sleeping potion. Thelma now is well on the road to recovery.

The extreme heat has had an adverse effect on Edward. Also at the hospital were the parents of both Edward and Thelma. When they learned the two had sought death because they believed differences in religion would prevent their marriage, the parents gave their consent—but the ceremony of necessity must depend on Edward's fight for life.

Before taking the sleeping powder, the boy and girl went through a marriage ceremony of their own devising.

NLB GETS FILM UNION PLEAS

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The national labor board had before it for consideration today four petitions asking that elections be ordered to designate bargaining representatives in 10 major motion picture studios. The Society of Motion Picture Set Designers, Society of Motion Picture Art Directors, the Society of Motion Picture Illustrators and the Association of Color Film Technicians were the petitioners.

President's Son, Bride in France

CHERBOURG, France. (AP)—Franklyn D. Roosevelt, Jr., and his bride, the former Ethel Du Pont, arrived here today aboard the liner Empress of Britain. U. S. Vice Consul Augustus Oertag met them, and they stopped at a Cherbourg cafe for tea before driving to Caen. They said they had a good crossing from Quebec, and intended to travel across Europe in the car which they brought with them.

FLOOD PROJECT MOVES AHEAD

The Orange county flood control project moved up another step today on the long ladder toward the goal of construction. For several weeks the senate and house of representatives have been working out compromises on the omnibus flood control bill in which lies the appropriation for the $15,000,000 Orange county project. Today the senate approved and sent to the house a compromise $194,536,063 appropriation.

Death Charges Loom

Another Orange county woman lies dead of auto accident injuries today, and in the shadow of her death two men face possible manslaughter charges.

last Sunday, proved to be fatal yesterday. She died in the county hospital at 4:30 p. m.

Jailed on charges of violating the traffic code while driving drunk are Jess Pollard, 236 Thirtieth street, Seal Beach, and Alex Mawson, 2026 West Fifth street—drivers of the colliding cars.

Mrs. Rizzata was riding with Pollard on Stanton boulevard when the head-on crash occurred. Both drivers later were pronounced intoxicated by examining physicians.

Highway Patrolman H. E. Inge, who arrived on the scene shortly after the collision, could find no cause for the crash other than that neither driver had complete control of his car.

The body of Mrs. Rizzata was taken to the Backs, Terry and Campbell funeral home in Anaheim, where it awaits an inquest.

CALL 50,000 IN TRUCK STRIKE

DETROIT. (AP)—A general strike called to 50,000 Michigan truck drivers and helpers encountered opposition at the outset of the walkout today.

While strike leaders projected a road blockade, the U. S. Truck Co., Inc., of Detroit, ignored the midnight strike deadline and announced at least 20 trucks would be dispatched to all parts of Michigan.

James Kennedy, assistant manager of the company, said police had agreed to convoy the trucks. The strike involves only intrastate traffic.

Two hundred men were assigned to blockade principal highways entering the larger cities by the Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

Approximately 40,000 drivers struck at the midnight deadline, said J. M. O'Laughlin, business agent, to enforce demands for wage increases which operators said in negotiations at Lansing yesterday they were unable to meet.

The union asked pay increases to 55 cents an hour for dockmen, 60 cents for city drivers, and 65 cents for highway drivers.

Raymond J. Bennett of Detroit, chairman of the union negotiating committee, said the blockade would be lifted only for milk and perishable foodstuffs "standing at this time." The strike call, he said, does not affect van and beer truck drivers.

TAX RATE TO INCREASE BY 9 CENTS

Budget of $709,288 Is $39,000 Above 1936

A 10 per cent pay raise for 185 city employees came like a visit from Santa Claus today, as Mayor Fred C. Rowland announced a $709,288 budget for this fiscal year and an increase of 9 cents in the tax rate.

The impending salary increase, restoring a 10 per cent cut taken during the depression, was reported exclusively in The Journal several months ago.

City expenditures this year will approximate those of 1929-1930, which were $708,624.13. The tax rate then was $1.87.

WITHIN LIMIT

Taxpayers will pay a $1.59 rate this year, including 10 cents for aid to delinquent assessment bonds. Last year's total rate was $1.50. The budget increase is 4.8 per cent, which is under the 5 per cent limit formerly in existence but thrown out by the last legislature.

This year's budget is $39,000 higher than last year's, mostly due to the $30,000 involved in the pay raise. Other items of increase, Mayor Rowland said, are in capital outlay, relief projects, and maintenance of price of materials. Gasoline alone will cost $2000 more on the same quantity as during the past year.

While expenditures are higher than in 1929-30, City Auditor Lloyd Banks pointed out, the tax rate will be 29 cents lower. This, he said, is due to an increase in the size of the city, and more money from sources other than taxation, such as vehicle taxes and business licenses.

FIXED CHARGES

Fixed charges, which include interest and sinking requirements, amount to $154,145 or 22 per cent of the budget. Capital outlay and improvements will take $80,400, including equipment, extension of water mains, municipal bowl improvements, and to PWA projects. Building repair will cost $5000; with $55,725 for supplies and $23,500 for maintenance of motorized equipment.

Other items include library, $37,900, and outfall sewer, $9500. Mayor Rowland said, "to keep all expenditures as low as possible and still maintain an efficient organization and to give value received for the taxpayer's dollar."

BANDIT GETS $20,000

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—A shotgun armed bandit robbed the Citizens bank of $20,000 here today and escaped on foot.

Democrats Split Over Program

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Four first term Democratic senators discussed the administration court bill with President Roosevelt at the White House today and immediately afterward foes of the measure hinted at a major break in the court fight.

The four senators—Gillette of Iowa, Andrews of Florida, Johnson of Colorado, and Brown of Michigan—refused to say anything more than that they had discussed the court bill with the President.

Reports quickly spread among their colleagues, however, that they had urged the chief executive to withdraw the bill and at least three of them told him flatly they were against it.

One, Senator Brown, had come out only last week for the compromise bill now pending in the senate.

Senator Gillette was publicly against the bill. The other two have been publicly non-committal.

At the same time, the opposition lined up another publicly committed senator in Maloney of Connecticut, who said he expected to speak against the measure if debate was resumed.

He made public commitments against the bill 41, with 40 public (See DEATH SPLITS, Page 5)

14th State Funeral Will Honor Sen. Robinson

WASHINGTON. (AP)—A sorrowing senate voted today to hold a state funeral—an honor accorded only to its most respected members—for Majority Leader Robinson (D., Ark.).

Mrs. Hattie Caraway, the remaining senator from Arkansas, formally requested that the ceremony be held tomorrow in the senate chamber, with President Roosevelt, his cabinet, supreme court justices, army and navy commanders, and diplomatic corps present.

Leaders of both parties conferred today on arrangements for the service—the fourteenth of its kind in 70 years—in the gold and marble senate chamber.

Forty-five senators and 23 representatives will accompany the body on a special train to Little Rock, Ark., where another service will precede burial Sunday afternoon.

The train will carry the largest congressional delegation ever to attend the burial of a senator.

Tomorrow's simple ceremony will begin at 10 a. m., Eastern standard time, when the flower banked coffin will be carried to the central arena of the senate chamber, near Robinson's vacant chair.

Seats of honor on each side will be reserved for Mrs. Robinson and relatives.

President Roosevelt, his cabinet, supreme court justices, high officers of the army and navy, and scores of uniformed diplomats will be grouped near the speaker's rostrum. Members of the house will cluster in the back of the chamber.

Admission to the galleries will be by tickets apportioned among members of the senate.

NEW PEIPING ATTACK NEAR

PEIPING. (AP)—Foreign military attaches heard today that Japan is concentrating a force of more than 6000 men at Fengtai which they believed would be used for an attempt to occupy Peiping within two days.

The attaches said 3500 Japanese troops, with full war equipment, were on the march, presumably from the Tientsin area, to reinforce 3000 men already constituting the Japanese garrison at Fengtai, important railway junction five miles southwest of this city.

Most of the reinforcements were believed to be advancing on foot, since it was not expected they (See JAPAN STATES, Page 2)

WED 9 TIMES, GETS 9 YEARS

WINNIPEG, Man. (Canadian Press)—George Roediger, 55-year-old meat packer who, police said, married nine wives in New York and Canada in the last 12 years, started a nine-year bigamy and theft sentence today.

The trip to the altar which led to his conviction was his marriage to Mrs. Julius Regetnik of McTavish, Man., widow, and mother of seven children. Roediger acknowledged the bigamous marriage and theft of $900 from her.

'LOST' BOATMEN DOZE IN BED AS SEARCHERS SCOUR SEA

Two Newport fishermen tumbled out of bed this morning, rubbed their eyes and learned they had been the object of one of the greatest sea searches in local history. While they slept, the Coast Guard and an airplane had been scouring the ocean between Newport and Catalina in a frantic attempt to locate the men, missing since Monday.

It was all because they caught too many fish.

Ferris Smith and Leon Clark, commercial fishermen, left Newport Monday at 2 a. m. They got a boatload. Their cargo was so

MEN ROLLED ABOUT LIKE FOOTBALLS

Gas Blamed for Blast;
Most of Crew Escapes

SULLIVAN, Ind. (AP)—Twenty men were killed today by explosion and fire in the Glendora Coal company's Baker mine, northeast of here, Jack Ogilvie, safety engineer of the Indiana Coal Operators' association, said this afternoon.

Three bodies have been recovered and 17 additional bodies are piled in a corner of the mine shaft, according to Ogilvie.

He said the 17 bodies could not be brought out until carbon monoxide gas cleared from the shaft.

MANY MEN ESCAPE

Harry Keenan, fire superintendent, said 203 men were in the mine when the explosion occurred and that all except 25 came out alive. Three of those carried out alive were critically injured, Keenan said, and six suffered slight wounds.

Keenan explained that of the 203 men in the mine at the time of the explosion, only 25 or 30 were in the area of the blast.

Ogilvie said it was a gas explosion but that the actual cause had not been determined.

The mine runs two and one-half miles underground toward Sullivan. The explosion was about one and three-fourths miles away from the tipple, Keenan said.

ROLLED LIKE FOOTBALLS

"The explosion picked me and my buddies up and rolled us like footballs," said J. Cox, who suffered head and body injuries. "Some of my buddies were thrown against the wall and they had no chance at all."

Ogilvie and Keenan said that most of those killed were crushed to death by being hurled against the walls.

RUSSIA FREES 50,000 FELONS

MOSCOW. (AP)—A Kremlin decree granted freedom today to 55,000 convicts who did "shock work" on the Moscow-Volga canal.

The decree requires the central council of trade unions to "take steps to provide the freed men with employment as soon as possible."

'Intoxicated' Folk Were Just Sleepy

If Oklahoma tourists want to sleep in their cars—drunk or sober—it's all right with the sheriff's office, so long as they don't disturb anyone. A case in point came up last night when a report was received that a big sedan with an Oklahoma license containing two men and a woman who appeared to be intoxicated was coming toward Santa Ana.

An investigation revealed the tourists stalled in orange grove with two flat tires. Asked if they wanted to move, the answer was "no, we want to sleep here."

I'll Tell You By BOB BURNS

(Copyright, 1937)

The main thing that has made the human race progress to its present high standard is that spark that we all have in us that makes us want to better ourselves. Some people may appear indolent and without any ambition at all, but if you'll approach 'em in the right way, you'll find the spark is there—just waitin' to be fanned into a fire.

My Cousin Dillard never appeared to have any ambition at all, and all he did was lay on the bank and fish, day after day. One day, while he was fishin', I walked up to him and says, "Why don't you try to better yourself?" and he says, "I'm perfectly satisfied." He said, "I wouldn't trade places with President Roosevelt." I says, "Wouldn't you for a million dollars?" and he says, "No." I says, "How about five million?" and he says, "No."

After a while I says, "Well about 10 million." Cousin Dillard sat up and he says, "All right, now you're talkin' real dough—I might consider that!"

DRIVER CONVICTED OF KILLING FRIEND IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

SENTENCE TO BE HEARD HERE FRIDAY

Woods' Case Based On Johns' Death

Angel G. Woods, Los Angeles seating company executive, stood convicted today of killing an old friend through negligence in driving a car. The charge was negligent homicide.

A superior court jury took three and a half hours last night in Superior Judge James L. Allen's court to return a guilty verdict against Woods in connection with the traffic death April 23 of James J. Johns. Judge Allen will pronounce sentence Friday at 10 a. m.

Woods was charged with driving a car which crashed into a parked truck near Dana Point on the coast highway April 23. Assistant District Attorney James L. Davis, in his closing argument to the jury yesterday afternoon, pointed to testimony of Dr. Elizabeth Woods that a blood test indicated Johns had drunk about two quarts of liquor.

Testimony was also introduced in the trial indicating that Woods attempted to bribe both a San Juan Capistrano physician and highway patrol officers to let him escape.

The jury heard arguments and Judge Allen's instructions late yesterday afternoon after traveling to the scene of the accident yesterday morning. Davis requested that the jury inspect the scene, pointing out the great width of the road should have made it possible for a sober driver to miss the truck.

Cleared of the rumor that she had students to her house to teach them how to mix cocktails, beautiful Miss Isabelle Hamlin, Saugus, Mass., school teacher, may come to Los Angeles to live. She is shown here with letters from sympathizers.

MADRID BEATS BACK REBELS

MADRID. (AP)—Wave after wave of insurgent infantrymen counter-attacking to retain their footholds along the Coruna road, northwest of Madrid, were reported today to have been hammered back by Gen. Jose Miaja's "milicianos."

During the day, however, heavy fighting continued along the road, which was vigorously defended by insurgents because of its strategic importance to the siege of the capital.

Madrid was awakened today by the bark of government anti-aircraft guns firing at six insurgent planes which flew over the city and finally disappeared behind low lying clouds.

Government planes continued a devastating bombardment of Villa-Franca del Castillo, apparently Miaja's immediate objective.

Much of the town about 12 miles from Madrid, was in ruins.

INSURGENTS CLAIM VICTORY

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier. (AP)—Spanish insurgent headquarters asserted today that a government offensive at Al-barracin on the Aragon front, in eastern Spain, had collapsed and Madrid-Valencia troops had been driven from all positions in that sector.

The announcement followed by a day a similar claim that the government offensive against Gen. Francisco Franco's siege positions west of Madrid had been halted.

TENANCY BILL SENT TO FDR

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The senate sent to the White House today a compromise tenancy bill authorizing the government to lend $55,000,000 in the next three years to help tenants become farm owners.

Final congressional action came with adoption of recommendations of a conference committee named to compromise senate and house differences over the legislation. The house approved the compromise Tuesday.

The measure empowers the secretary of agriculture to lend $10,000,000 this fiscal year, $25,000,000 in the next and $50,000,000 in the third year at three per cent for farm purchases. Although tenants and sharecroppers buying land with federal aid will be given title immediately, they cannot sell the properties for five years.

The measure also authorizes a $10,000,000 appropriation this year for purchase and retirement of submarginal land, and $20,000,000 in each of the next two years.

Judge Aggeler Dies Suddenly

BUELLTON, Calif. (AP)—Judge William Tell Aggeler, 71, Los Angeles county superior court bench veteran, died here early today after a heart attack. On vacation from court duties, the jurist came here last Saturday, accompanied by his wife. He had been in failing health for several months.

He was chosen this year by his fellow jurists as presiding judge of the criminal calendar department. Judge Aggeler was a native son, Knight of Columbus, an Elk, and Eagle, and a member of the Turn-Verein.

WHITTIER RIOT QUEZON WILL INJURES FOUR SPLIT ESTATES

WHITTIER. (AP)—Four men were injured yesterday in a riotous fracas outside the R. Morris furniture and upholstery factory, where a strike is in progress. The trouble started when 22 men who declined to join the upholsterers union reported for work and pickets attempted to halt their passing the picket line.

Officer Who Slew Wife Faces Prison

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—A life sentence in San Quentin prison today faced Joseph Conroy, 32-year-old former Huntington Park police officer. Conroy was convicted of fatally wounding his estranged wife last April 16. He pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, was found guilty by a judge sitting without jury.

NEW YORK. (AP)—President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine commonwealth, arriving from Europe en route to Manila, today he intends to sponsor legislation to divide the great estates of the Philippines among the common people.

"I am calling a special session of the national assembly upon my return," said the leader of the Filipinos. "I will ask it to appropriate money collected from the excise tax on coconut oil to purchase some of the great haciendas of the Philippines and to create public works jobs for the underprivileged. I intend that the haciendas shall be cut up into small farms for the common people. We will expropriate the lands if necessary, but I know the estate owners are willing to sell."

men and women get employment, which is the kind of relief that any red-blooded American wants. Over ten thousand have been placed in positions within the last twelve months due to his efforts. As long as I am able to work and the "sky-piece" functions normally, I don't want anyone to carry relief to my door.

The trouble with politics is that too often it pays tribute to incompetence.

The Democratic party lost an old-time picturesque politician in the passing of Senator Joe Robinson. American politics is yielding a new type, but so far none more able than those old veterans who knew the intricacies of the game, and really enjoyed it.

JAPANS STATES PEACE TERMS

would reach Fengtai before Saturday.

Foreign and Chinese military men believed Japan now has the equivalent of a full division at war strength, about 16,000 men, in northern Hopeh south of the great wall.

Foreign attaches expected the Japanese to attempt to drive out the Chinese 29th army, take over full control of Peiping, Tientsin and the connecting railway.

JAPAN PEACE TERMS

Chinese quoted reports, but could not confirm them, that Japanese militarists were pressing local authorities to accept peace terms, a point of which was said to be boycotting of present elections in North China to name delegates to the national people's assembly.

Such a boycott would be regarded as a virtual declaration of independence of China proper.

First reports that agreement to end the crisis had been reached at Tientsin were contradicted by later reports that negotiations were continuing.

NANKING OFFICIALS BALK

The national government at Nanking has insisted throughout the tense week of fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops that it would recognize no agreement reached locally.

It was believed here that the elimination from the government of Gen. Sung Cheh-Yuan, commander of the 29th route army and head of the Hoph-Chahar political council, was the main feature of the agreement. The report declared the Hoph-Chahar government of the two North China provinces had already been organized according to the agreement with Japanese.

The two secondary points of the reported agreement were said to be removal of Gen. Sung's 29th route army from the area of hostilities to the southward and installation of a new head of the Hoph-Chahar council who would be acceptable to the Japanese army.

MORE CLASHES REPORTED

It was considered doubtful here if the 29th army, which has been fighting the Japanese since a week ago Wednesday, would leave the area if it was ordered to do so under the agreement.

Repeated clashes in an ever-widening area around Peiping were still being reported between the Chinese troops and Japanese.

A cavalry detachment of 200 Japanese was said to have been beaten off when they attacked a small village south of the Nanyuan headquarters of General Sung's army. The Japanese forces based on Fengtai were reported attempting to surround Nanyuan, eight miles south of here.

PASTOR LINKED TO SLAYING

PARIS, Mo. (AP)—Prosecuting Attorney Tom Proctor of Monroe county announced today recovery of $1930 he said presumably had been taken from Mrs. Dennis Kelly, 45-year-old church worker, whose battered body was found late Tuesday floating in the Mississippi river near Louisiana, Mo.

Proctor said the money was taken to the home of Sheriff Russell Wilkes by Miss Myra Hanan, who has made her home here with the Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Newton since her childhood.

He quoted Miss Hanan as saying the Rev. Mr. Newton, 51, a northern Missouri Baptist minister for 30 years who yesterday was charged with the slaying of Mrs. Kelly, had given her the money which he described as "valuable papers" Tuesday when he left to officiate at a funeral.

Sheriff Wilkes said Miss Hanan and Noel Newton, son of the accused minister, "admitted burning some women's clothing the son found in his father's car Tuesday night when he drove the machine to Moberly." The son operates an oil station here.

MERRIAM ACTS AGAINST DYER

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—Governor Merriam said he will call a special session of the legislature if necessary to prevent the slayer of three little girls in Los Angeles county from escaping hanging because of the new lethal gas execution bill which becomes effective Aug. 27.

The governor said Los Angeles authorities had brought up the question by stating to him they probably would have to accept a plea from the slayer which would result in a life sentence for him because of the new law.

The chief executive said he had not looked into the question whether the law is retroactive.

The new law in full reads: "The punishment of death shall be inflicted by the administration of lethal gas."

"This act does not apply to any punishment of death imposed for any crime committed prior to its effective date."

"I will call a special session, if necessary," said the governor, "to prevent the slayer of three girls from escaping the noose. I have not yet asked the attorney general for an opinion on the law, but I want to be sure the slayer will not escape with a life sentence."

The governor stated he intends to get an opinion from the attorney general before he calls a special session to make possible for the slayer to hang.

He said the question was brought up during a telephone conversation with Los Angeles prosecuting authorities.

SCOTTSBORO CASE REOPENS

DECATUR, Ala. (AP)—The ninth jury in six years to sit in judgment of the "Scottsboro case" was instructed today by Judge W. W. Callahan in the laws it must consider in determining the fate of Clarence Norris, one of nine negroes charged with attacking two white women.

The jury had before it a demand from the state for the death of Norris, twice condemned, and as many times saved by the U. S. supreme court.

Judge Callahan informed the jury:

"This suit is not Victoria Price vs. Clarence Norris, but the state of Alabama vs. Clarence Norris."

"Victoria Price has no more to do with this case than any other witness. She was called and brought here by the state, to testify for the state."

The judge also said "where the woman is white, there is a strong presumption under the law that she did not yield to the advances of a negro."

NEW PARALYSIS CASE AT BREA

Another infantile paralysis case was under observation by county health authorities today, as physicians of this area kept on the alert for more symptoms of the disease.

A Brea child, 2½-year-old Arthur Leroy Flower, was stricken Tuesday, the fourth case to be reported this summer in Orange county. He is now in the county hospital. One of the other three, a Seal Beach child, has been taken to Los Angeles by a Long Beach physician.

No fatalities have been reported this year from the disease, which became prevalent in the summer season. Other Southern California counties have reported an increase in paralysis cases the past few weeks.

AMELIA'S MATE STILL HOPEFUL

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Still unshaken by failure of ships and planes to find Amelia Earhart in the South Pacific, where she vanished 13 days ago, her husband said again today:

"She'll come through."

George Palmer Putnam, maintaining watch at Union Air terminal here, pointed out his wife and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, had a month's supply of concentrated food.

The aerial search by planes from the carrier Lexington has so far only "scratched the surface" of the area where Miss Earhart may be, Putnam said.

SOCIETY PUG'S CASE DROPPED

NEW YORK. (AP)—Enzo Fiermonte, the ex-prize fighter and husband of Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, went to magistrate's court in Flushing today to answer a summons for striking a photographer July 8, but the whole thing was called off.

"It was all an accident," his lawyer, Sidney Rosenthal, told Magistrate John D. Mason.

The photographer, John Drennan, was inclined to agree that being knocked out by Enzo came under the heading of accidents and dropped the charge. Drennan was hit the day Fiermonte was sentenced to five days in the Riker's island penitentiary on a 1934 speeding charge.

A Saloon's A Saloon, Even In California

SAN FRANCISCO. (Special)—We don't know whether this is making the Japanese nervous or not, but the state supreme court dropped a bomb the other day without causing a Japanese eye to bat. It held that no Japanese can run a saloon in California. In another day that might have developed a very nice international incident.

What's more, the supreme court, in a decision involving the Lodi closing ordinance, took judicial cognizance, as the lawyers say, that the saloon exists in California. It up and called a saloon a saloon. This will be a great shock to millions of informed Californians, who happen to know that saloons are still against the law.

OLD 'BLANKET' BILLS FOUND

Dean Collier, teller at the First National bank, looked twice when W. Pierce Rowe handed him some money.

"The money was real, but it was old. Rowe handed him $200 in 'blanket' bills, $200 in currency dating back to 1900, which is old for paper money.

The bills measured seven and one-half by three inches. The bills you might have in your wallet all measure six by two and one-half.

Bank officials pointed out that there is no premium on the money Rowe turned in.

One of the $20 bills is a gold certificate, saying on its face that it is redeemable in gold coin. But it tried get $20 in gold from the government today.

Some of the other bills, issued by banks as national currency, have the name of the cashier and president of the bank on them. In one instance the names were written by hand. In most they were stamped.

Some of Rowe's bills were signed by Carter Glass, fiery Virginia senator, when he was secretary of the treasury. Others were signed by William Gibbs McAdoo, California senator, who was secretary of the treasury under Woodrow Wilson. Some of the late bills, still of the old size, were signed by Andrew W. Mellon. Mellon, retired art collector, was secretary of the treasury under Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover.

The bills are still legal tender, but they're awfully hard to handle. But then, $200 would be hard to handle.

38 AMERICANS SAVED ON LINER

BUENOS AIRES. (AP)—Forty-nine passengers of the Furness Prince liner Southern Prince, including 38 from the United States, were removed to safety, last night after the steamship and a freighter collided in the river plate.

The passengers were brought here aboard the cutter Golondrina after the Southern Prince's pumps failed to work and water poured into the engine room. Four tugs reached the ship as the passengers were removed.

The Southern Prince was about 25 miles out of Buenos Aires port when it and the British freighter Elstree Grange, bound for Liverpool, Eng., collided in a fog.

Widow Backed to Succeed Robinson

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Former Governor J. M. Furell issued a statement today asserting that Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson is the "logical successor to her distinguished husband for his unexpired term."

Furell said that "off the record predictions by prominent Democratic leaders indicate the ground work is being quietly laid for a meeting of the Democratic state committee within a week to nominate Governor Carl E. Bailey to fill the vacancy in the U. S. senate."

File Charges in S.A. Man's Death

Manslaughter charges today were filed against Amor Salazar, 21, of Calexico as the result of a traffic accident in which Ignacio De La Rosa of Santa Ana and Charles L. Gillette, former Imperial county sheriff, were killed. Salazar is being held in El Centro.

8 EXTRA POUNDS OF RUBBER

TAPPING RUBBER TREES ON FIRESTONE PLANTATIONS IN LIBERIA

From these plantations come an ever increasing supply of rubber. Firestone saves in producing raw materials, manufacturing and distribution to give YOU more for your money.

Another Reason Why FIRESTONE GIVES YOU SO MUCH Extra Value at No Extra Cost

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—because under the tread are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING—because the tread is scientifically designed.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE because of the extra tough, long-wearing tread.

REVOLT IN OUTFALL SEWER DISTRICT HALTED BY NEW PEACE TREATY

DEADLOCK ON REPAIR TO BE BROKEN

Committee to Iron Out Disputed Problems

The Orange County Outfall Sewer district was making another supreme struggle today to pull itself out of the morass in which it has been floundering for more than a year.

Long unable to agree on material to repair its major conveyor line, the district last night finally set up machinery designed to pull it out of its deadlock. A committee was appointed at a meeting in Anaheim to recommend procedure for repairing the line, and members of the district's board indicated they will abide by the committee's advice.

TO STEM REVOLT

This action would end the long battle between Santa Ana, which has favored use of concrete pipe, and other cities of the district, which want vitrified clay pipe used. It also would stem a wave of revolt which at one time threatened to completely dismember the district.

The idea of secession was abandoned last night. The city of Orange, which had gone so far as to start action toward setting up its own sewer treatment plant, has decided to stay in the district.

A new angle was injected into the repair setup last night when it was reported that successful repair depends to a large extent upon the bio-filtration process. This system of injecting oxygen into the line counter-balances production of hydrogen sulphide, which eats the line.

TEST PLANT

The matter came up when it was reported that the odor from the Buena Park part of the system has become a problem. Engineer Harry N. Jenks, who devised a demonstration sewer treatment plant here, has perfected the process, it was reported. He has offered to install a test plant for bio-filtration at Buena Park to determine feasibility of its use for the entire line.

Grover L. Walters, Fullerton, water superintendent, was named chairman of a committee to investigate the bio-filtration proposal and report back.

The committee delegated to recommend a method of repairing the outfall line and bring peace to the district is headed by City Engineer J. L. McBride of Santa Ana as chairman. It includes City Engineer E. P. Haggood of Anaheim, City Engineer C. C. Bonebrake of Orange, City Engineer John Sanks of La Habra and Grover L. Walters of Fullerton.

Three Happy Soviet Fliers and Polar Plane

The three Soviet trans-polar fliers, who set a new flight distance record of over 6200 miles in their single motored plane, are shown after being taken to March Field, Calif., following their landing at San Jacinto. Left to right are: Pilot Mikhail Gromov, Co-Pilot Andre Yumoshev and Navigator Serge Danilin. The big single-motored plane in which the three Soviet aviators set a world's distance record by flying over the polar regions from Moscow to San Jacinto, is shown where it sat down in a pasture after more than 62 hours in the air.

FLIERS GREET COUNTRYMEN

or two days in Los Angeles, then an overnight train ride for a day's visit in San Francisco. From there the aviators plan to fly a commercial transport plane to Washington, then go on to New York, from where they probably will sail for Russia July 25.

Grigori Goldkman, Soviet consul at San Francisco, who accompanied the fliers here, said plans were subject to change.

The fliers sent their greetings to their countrymen last night on a radio broadcast to which Moscow was hooked by short wave. Earlier Josef Stalin, head of the Russian government, congratulated them for their heroism and skill shown in the achievement of this new victory of Soviet aviation.

PLANE CALLED 'MARVEL'

I. Claude Ryan, builder of "The Spirit of St. Louis," the plane Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew from New York to Paris, examined the giant Soviet ship and pronounced it a marvel of compact efficiency. He said the Russian engineers had not wasted an inch of space, that the fliers had crunched into a slender fuselage compartment four feet long and less than three feet wide, with even their provisions stored in the wings.

That the record shattering flight will qualify under the rules of the International Aeronautical Federation was indicated by Major Edison E. Mouton, an official whose committee inspected and found unbroken the seals of the three barographs and the gasoline tank. He said he was sending the instruments and essential information to the National Aeronautical association in Washington.

Major Mouton praised the design, primary construction and motor of the giant craft, but said the secondary construction, including the fabric, was poor.

"We were astounded, however, when we opened the motor cowl and saw not a drop of oil," he said. "The motor was as clean as if it had just been wiped."

Soviet Hops Cause Warning to 'Foes'

MOSCOW. (AP)—The communist party newspaper Pravda warned Soviet Russia's "enemies" today that their capitals lie within easy range of Soviet war planes.

The warnings, which pointed out the "significance" of two Soviet non-stop flights from Moscow to the American Pacific coast, was believed by foreign observers to be addressed to Berlin and Tokyo. Both the Japanese and German capitals lie within 800 miles of Soviet air bases.

BOY'S HIP INJURED

Five-year-old Fuane Dalton, 1627 West Second street, today was taken to the county hospital suffering from a hip injury sustained in a fall.

SOVIET LAUDS POLAR FLIGHT

MOSCOW. (AP)—Soviet officials said they were "immensely pleased and thrilled" over the successful outcome of the second Soviet trans-polar flight to the United States.

The flight committee, which started preparations to claim officially the world distance record for the three airmen, described the speed and distance of the expedition as "surprising."

United States Ambassador Joseph E. Davis issued the following statement:

"The significance of the second flight is not so much that it breaks the world record as that it takes the first flight out of the accident or stunt character."

"It indicates that behind the imagination, daring and boldness of these splendid aviators there is a thorough, scientific, efficient and able organization directing aviation activities in the Soviet Union."

"The flight was a distinct contribution to stability and progress in the field of world aviation."

Cow Farming Pays--If Polar Plane Lands on Your Place

Homer Haney, 1030 West Bishop street, described today how he saw a fortune fall from the sky.

But the fortune didn't go to Haney; it went to Earl Smith, owner of the cow pasture in which Russia's record-breaking fliers landed yesterday near San Jacinto.

Haney, who drives a delivery truck in the Hemet valley for a local bread company, reached the scene after a crowd had gathered to see the fliers and their red-winged monoplane. He said Smith was charging 25 cents admission to his pasture and expected to clear $1000 by nightfall.

Several hot dog stands, cold drink concessions and an ice cream wagon also gathered at the spot to collect their share of the fortune.

Haney came back to Santa Ana convinced that cow farming at San Jacinto pays—if you can get an airplane to land in your pasture.

ROBINSON'S DEATH RAISES JUDGE ISSUE

Senator Was Slated To Get Court Post

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The death of Democratic Leader Robinson today focused interest anew on the question of who will succeed to the supreme court seat made vacant by the retirement of Justice Willis Van Devanter.

Shortly after the retirement was announced last spring Robinson's senatorial colleagues pushed his name to the fore, and it was generally agreed here that the appointment would go to him.

Senator Harrison (D., Miss.) said today that the position would have gone to him.

The 64-year-old Arkansan was one of the oldest men mentioned for the position. Others included: Attorney General Cummings, 67; Solicitor General Stanley Reed, 52; Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, 45, who said, however, he was "not a candidate"; James M. Landis, 43, securities commission chairman; Prof. Felix Frankfurter, 54, of Harvard law school; Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, 44; Donald R. Richberg, 55, former NRA chief; Justin Miller, 58, of the board of tax appeals; three New York jurists—Ferdinand Pecora, 55; Learned Hand, 65, and Samuel Rosenman.

DEATH SPLITS DEMOCRATS

ly for it, counting Brown who was reported to have switched.

When the four senators returned to the capital from the White house they all kept their lips tightly closed, except to issue a statement through Brown saying they had talked to the President about the court bill. The statement followed:

"Senators Gillette, Andrews, Johnson and Brown met with the President and discussed the court reorganization plan this morning. We can make no further statement concerning it."

The day's most important development in the court fight, after the death of Majority Leader Robinson of Arkansas yesterday threw the senate into confusion, came with senate Democrats divided into two factions fighting for control of the party machinery and the legislative program.

The death of Robinson, for 15 years the party leader, left administration supporters determined to put through the court bill and such other Roosevelt proposals as the wage and hour and housing bills.

Democrats opposed to the court measure urged speedy adjournment of congress.

The actual opening of hostilities was postponed until after burial of the beloved leader.

The administration senators were lining up for Senator Barkley of Kentucky for party leader. Most of the opposing group was supporting Senator Harrison of Mississippi.

Senator Byrnes of South Carolina also figured in the leadership picture, but some senators said he would back Harrison. Byrnes, like many others, refused to comment on the leadership race until after Robinson's burial.

It would be possible for the administration to win the party control fight, and lose on the court bill. Only Democrats will figure in the first conflict, but Republicans will vote on the court bill. All 16 are opposed to it.

Foes of the measure said they would move as soon as debate is resumed next week to return the bill to committee, unless a check of their votes showed they did not have the strength they anticipated.

ASSAULT CASE HEARING SET

Jose Reyna, 73-year-old Placentia Mexican, was in the county jail today under $1500 bail, awaiting preliminary hearing in Fullerton Tuesday on charges of a statutory offense against a 6-year-old girl.

Reyna pleaded not guilty to the charge, brought by District Attorney Investigator R. H. Sandoz, after the little girl's brother told an older sister he had seen Reyna attempt to assault the girl in an orchard near their home.

Arrest of the aged Placentian was the third this month on similar charges in Orange county. A Costa Mesa Mexican already is under a one to 50-year sentence to San Quentin and a La Habra WPA crossing guard is awaiting trial in superior court on similar charges, both involving young girls.

NYA Band to Play In Park Tonight

T. Dunstan Collins, conductor, today announced the program for this evening's open-air concert by the NYA boys' band which will begin promptly at 7:45 o'clock in Birch park.

Selections include "Stars and Stripes" by Sousa, "From Dawn to Twilight" by Bennett, "Wild Flowers" by Kiefer, "The Stein Song" by Fenstad, "Chicago Tribune" by Chambers, a selection from "Mlle. Modiste" by Herbert, "Simplicity" by Lee, "Semper Paratus" by Sousa, and "Star Spangled Banner" in conclusion.

New York Stocks

By VICTOR EUBANK
NEW YORK, (AP)—A late rally in U. S. Steel today helped stiffen a shaky stock market.

The list had its troubles from the start, with numerous issues, including steels, dipping fractions to a point or more.

Slipping and climbing intervals were frequent and, even in the final period, when the major steel stock stepped out in front, many bellwethers failed to get ahead.

Dealings were comparatively slow throughout, transfers being in the neighborhood of 700,000 shares.

ODDS and ENDS

By PAUL WRIGHT

Jack Jones, the light-heavyweight who came out of Wyoming to thrill fight fans at the Highway 101 battle-box here, has left for the Pacific northwest.

While performing in Orange county, Jones lived at 1910 Anaheim avenue, Costa Mesa, and trained under the tutelage of D. K. Blue of Newport Beach.

Jones said his first stop would be at Portland, Ore. From there he will visit in Walla Walla and other Washington cities. He plans to be away all summer.

Ted Walker, kid brother of Mickey Walker of Santa Ana, is the most under-rated second-baseman in the National Nightball league, in the opinion of his manager, Liston (Memphy) Hill of the Orange Cubs. Joe Rodgers, fiery skipper of the Oilers, left yesterday on a week's fishing trip to the Bishop country, but his absence at Anaheim tomorrow night will be eased by the signing of Francis Conrad, onetime Santa Ana regular, now back from Visalia. Coach Ned Brown, who will be in complete charge of the Southern California champions at Anaheim, probably will send Conrad to shortstop, with Third-Base-man Bill McKinley returning from his vacation and petite George Murray shifting from the "hot" corner to left field.

Bill Cook of the Dons' coaching staff has been labeled "boy in bronze," but that title now belongs to Coach Joe Kogler of the Saints, who has a perfect fan after a month of visits to the beach. Kogler is leaving soon to visit relatives and friends in the old home state, Washington.

Norman Wyckoff, who was a heavy hitter but not much of a pitcher with the Saints, is "wow-ing" followers of the Fullerton Firemen, independent baseball aggregation managed by Francis (Pep) Lemon. Wyckoff is busier now, and has a faster ball. He is devoting all of his time to the mound.

Fishermen, please note: Beginning Monday, the "Rex" and "San Antonio" will leave for the fishing grounds at the Coronado Islands at 2 a. m., returning at 1 p. m. This schedule will be maintained until Aug. 15.

It never fails! Two Santa Ana nightball fans approached Jimmie Heffron, Anaheim Bulletin sports editor, at Anaheim last night, suggesting Huntington Beach PURPOSELY lost that 8-4 ball game to "Doc" Smith's club Tuesday night to assure the Stars a place in the Shaughnessy playoffs. Nothing is further from the truth. Joe Rodgers of the Oilers himself admitted after the game that his club was "trying too hard" to beat a team the Oilers never like to lose to—Santa Ana. Heffron knows, too, that Huntington Beach didn't "throw" the game. "Rodgers wouldn't do a thing like that; he likes to win too well," was Jimmie's comment.

Rodgers "throw" a game? Don't make us laugh! Why did he trounce the Stars FOUR straight in the play-offs last September? Joe obviously prefers victory to money, and he will be burned to a crisp to learn that some fan-fatics have accused him of losing purposely. Santa Ana's 8-4 victory was no more of a fluke than Huntington Beach's 3-0 and 6-0 shutouts, administered to the Stars earlier in the season. The Stars have begun rolling, and I wouldn't be surprised to see them win five straight.

SAN DIEGO VS. LIONETTES

Lois Terry Pitches For Edwards' Girls At Orange Tonight

Against San Diego, runner-up to the Mark Bloomer girls for the Southern California championship last summer, the Orange Lionettes play their most attractive softball exhibition in the Orange city park at 8:15 tonight. There will be a 15-cent admission.

The game matches two of most spectacular girl pitchers in the southland—Lois Terry of Orange, the ex-Los Angeles bombshell, and Mary Updegraff of San Diego, who shut out by a 10-0 score the Escondido nine that recently upset the Lionettes, 9-7, at Orange.

Mary Varley, who pitched for San Diego in The Examiner tournament last year, will do the back-stopping tonight. Selma Meinecke, leftfielder, is the club's leading hitter, boasting a percentage of .595. Bernice Myers at first base, the clean-up hitter, possesses a mark of .476. The first seven batters are above .400 with the willow.

Orange's lineup is prominently sprinkled with the names of Santa Ana girls—Phyllis Tucker, catcher; Ruth Lee, first base; Pat Collins, second base; Gertrude Ameling, shortstop; Mary Perkins, pitcher, and Wilma Potter.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By the Associated Press
RED RUFFING, Yankees—Held Tigers to five hits, fanned eight and gave one base on balls to trim Tigers, 10-2.

BUSTER MILLS, Red Sox—Bagged four hits, one a homer, and drove in five runs in 15-6 rout of Browns.

VERNON KENNEDY, White Sox—Hurled five hitter and clouted homer in 4½-inning, 6-4 victory over Athletics.

CARL HUBBELL, Giants—Turned in fifth straight win, by 4-2 score over Pirates, while giving up only four hits and one walk.

Speedboat Queens To Race With Men

HERMOSA BEACH, (AP)—Two speedboat queens will vie with men for honors when the Catalina-Hermosa beach aquaplane race starts Aug. 1.

Both Loretta Turnbull Richert, formerly of Monrovia, and Dorothy Munson of Arcadia, will be towing women aquaplanists in competition with a field of 23 all-male teams.

"Olive receives loss each game on forfeit, the team having folded up."

Three games ahead of the field and certain to finish ahead of the pack on closing night, Aug. 2, Pace-setting Ernie Lagier's Irvine Beapickers nevertheless face stiff opposition in the County Nightball league at Fullerton tonight.

Fullerton has been the surprise of the second half, the upcountry nine upsetting Brea, 4-2, Monday for its greatest feat. Virgil Kiger's Lions were knocked out of the running for the first place by that loss, but are sure-fire bets to gain the Shaughnessy playoff Aug. 5.

Holly Sugar should encounter Yorba Linda will be the underdog difficulty at Brea tonight, but at San Juan Capistrano. The injured ankle of George Stevens, manager of the beach aggregation, is responding quickly to treatment, and Stevens should be with his club any day now.

The Shaughnessy playoff will pair the four top teams in two series for the 1937 title. Team No. 1 will meet team No. 3, and team No. 2 will battle team No. 4, the two survivors playing three-out-of-five games for the flag.

FRANKIE TAYLOR WINS
OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP)—Frankie Taylor, 192, Hollywood, Calif., took the last two falls of a three-fall catchweight wrestling bout here last night and dumped Duke Chick, 183, Memphis, Tenn., junior heavyweight wrestling champion.

MISSIONS' PREP STAR PITCHES WELL, BUT PADRES WIN 8 TO 6

San Diego's Padres were a step nearer the Pacific Coast league leadership today after defeating the San Francisco Missions as the top-spot Sacramento Solons lost their second straight to Los Angeles.

Rugger Adrizio, young Mission hurler just out of Commerce High school in San Francisco, pitched his first professional baseball yesterday when he stepped in as relief hurler and held the Padres scoreless for five innings and limited them to two bingles.

San Diego won the game, 8 to 6, and moved into a virtual tie for second place with the San Francisco Seals, who clubbed the Portland Beavers into submission. The Padres' Ted Williams got two for two and batted in three runs as his teammates reached Johnny Bahch for five hits and six runs in the second inning. Max West, clouting outfielder of the Reds, smacked his second homer in as many days. The Missions outlived the Padres, 15 to 9, but left 11 to die on the bags.

REJOINS OILERS—Little George Murray, Handy-Andy of Huntington Beach's Oilers, has returned from a vacation, and is expected to add a new punch to Joe Rodgers' defending nightball champions. It was his single that gave the Oilers their first run in Santa Ana's 8-4 upset victory Tuesday night.

MOTT PITCHES FOR STARS

Westminster Faces Southpaw Tomorrow

Southpaw Bob Mott, sensational fielding first baseman whose dislocated finger has completely healed, will take the mound for Santa Ana's revamped Stars against Westminster here tomorrow night.

With Stan Jacobsmeier, the Stars' new pitching find from Riverside, leaving to enroll at the University of California Aug. 15, Manager "Doc" Smith must break in a new hurler to carry the Stars until—and if—Jim Coates returns from Visalia late next month.

Francis Conrad, last year's shortstop with the Stars, has been released by the Santa Ana commission, and will join Huntington Beach's Oilers at Anaheim tomorrow night. He will fill in for Manager Joe Rodgers, who is on a week's fishing trip into the Bishop country. It is reported Bill McKinley, now employed in Placentia, will be lost to the Oilers next week.

Mott was injured in the pitcher's box while attempting to field a hot liner off the bat of Gene Thomas of Irvine in an exhibition at the Bowl. He has been able to play first base in spite of the injury.

Nan Coats will shift from right field to his old post at first base against Westminster, the team that surprised Orange 14-9 Tuesday night, and Frank Luker or Fred Cartwright, City league prospect, will go into right field. The remainder of the lineup will be the same, with Bomo Koral behind the plate, "Doc" Smith on second, Charley Comstock at shortstop, Tommy Young on third and the two impressive beanpois, Bob Schwartz and Fred Wiener, in left and centerfields.

Mrs. H. A. Bradley Willowick Star

Mrs. H. A. Bradley, 96-16-80, won low net for women golfers at the Willowick course yesterday, with Mrs. Ann Townsend, 99-16-83, and Mrs. Ben Livesey, 101-18-83, finishing in a deadlock for second.

TY COBB PREFERS 'DIZ' DEAN OVER HUBBELL AND GOMEZ

But Cardinal Righthander Should Work More On Batters' Weaknesses, Says No. 1 Immortal

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—Dizzy Dean could become the greatest pitcher in the history of baseball by combining his natural ability with some of the strategy of the late Christy Mathewson, in the opinion of Ty Cobb.

"If old Diz worked more on the batters' weaknesses, like Mathewson did, instead of trying to throw the ball by them, he'd probably be the greatest we've ever had," said the player whose batting and base running feats cram the record books and have earned him the distinction of baseball's No. 1 immortal.

"Matty was finishing up about the time I started and we played in different leagues but I saw enough of him to know he was a master workman. But I think Dean has the stuff to top any of them if he would concentrate more on the tricky side of pitching than he does now."

The old-time Georgia Peach, so remarkable on the offensive he had rival teams playing Ty Cobb instead of the Detroit Tigers, rates Dean as the most valuable moundman in the game today. He'd prefer the St. Louis Cardinals star on his staff to either Carl Hubbell of the Giants or "Lefty" Gomez of the Yankees.

Cobb, retired to the life of a country squire at Atherton, follows baseball closely and is well acquainted with Dean's eccentricities. He thinks the best way to get the most out of the big right hander is to "kid him along."

"Diz is like a high spirited thoroughbred horse. You can't browbeat that kind," Cobb observed. "If he was pitching under me, I'd put him on a bonus contract, the more games he won the more extra money he got."

I think he can be talked into greater performances. In my opinion his true value hasn't been developed."

HARRY SMITH BOXES HERE

Highway Battle-Box Offers Double Main Event With Heavies

Fight fans are expected to flock to the Highway 101 battle-box tonight to see the American Legion 40 & 8 society's second eight-bout card, marking the fist debut here of Harry Smith, the U. S. C. football great.

The show opens at 8:30. The 206-pound Smith, massive tackle and guard who captained the Trojan Frosh gridders last fall and gained all-Southern California prep laurels at Chaffey High in '35, will battle "Sonny Boy" Williams, Los Angeles' 200-pound negro.

On the other half of the "double main" event, Matchmaker George Stewart has secured the plugging Henry Moberly of Los Angeles against John Hanschen. He calls the card one of the best ever offered at the O. C. A. C. arena.

Six other bouts, sponsored by the 40 & 8 society, will complete Stewart's attractive program.

For those who like diminutive sluggers, Stewart has lined up Gus Leyvas of Yuma, Ariz., brother of the pro who headlines Hollywood cards, against Ray Ima, 105-pounder from Los Angeles.

TONIGHT'S PROGRAM
Double main event—Harry Smith, 206, Chaffey, vs. "Sonny Boy" Williams, 200, Los Angeles; and John Hanschen, Los Angeles, vs. Henry Moberly, Los Angeles.

Marvin Burgh, Kansas City Golden Gloves champion, vs. Cornell Morrow, 160, Los Angeles.

Cecil Payne, Long Beach, vs. Ernie Smith, 158, Los Angeles.

Gus Leyvas, Yuma, Ariz., vs. Ray Ima, 108, Los Angeles.

Indian George Pouch vs. Frank Rangel, 135, Pomona.

Ed Morales, Los Angeles, vs. Al Higgs, 135, Glendale.

Sal Baca, Ontario, vs. Willie Brown, 124, Los Angeles.

LUTZE WRESTLES LOPEZ MONDAY

Vincent Lopez, Mexican heavyweight wrestling idol, and former world champion, will face Nick Lutze in the best two out of three fall main event at the Orange County Athletic club Monday night.

Lutze, one of four outstanding heavyweights selected to draw for the Lopez match, won the right to meet the former champion when his name, written on a slip of paper, was first out of a hat drawn in the office of the state athletic commission yesterday.

As the result of the drawing, and according to the agreement between the four, Indian Jules Strongbow gets the semi, Hans Steinke the special and Scarlet Mr. X the opening match of the all-star program.

Ignacio Martinez will meet Strongbow, Louie Baccaquapi, Italian heavyweight, will face Steinke and Al Baffert is signed to mix with the undefeated Scarlet Mr. X.

BUDGETS FOR SCHOOLS UP $250,000

District Totals Told By Superintendent

An increase of a quarter-million dollars in Orange county school expenditures for 1937-38 is forecast in the proposed district budget, released by Ray Adkinson, county superintendent of schools.

The total requested sum for this year is noted at $4,722,528, as compared with $3,927,528 last year. Elementary schools have asked for $2,068,503, as compared with $2,048,435 last year. High schools will get $1,727,408, as compared with $1,516,878 last year. The increase of $210,000 is attributed to increased enrollment, as well as to the cost of new plants in several districts. The county's two junior colleges will get an increase of $16,000 over their 1936-37 expenditures when they received $276,617 for this year's operating expenses. Last year they spent $360,215.

JUNIOR COLLEGES

Breaking this junior college figure down, it is found that Fullerton District Junior college will get $224,685 for this year, as compared with $215,000 last year. Santa Ana is to be about with $151,932. Last year the situation was the same, Fullerton getting $212,616 while Santa Ana struggled along on less than $150,000.

An increase of from $240 to almost $100,000 is noted in estimated high school expenditures. Anaheim will get $225,500 as compared with $222,700 last year, while Brea-Olinda has a raise of only $4,000, to $94,482, over its $90,392 figure of last year. Capistrano's budget for this year will carry expenditures of $55,500 as compared to $34,850 last year.

FULLERTON UP
Meanwhile Fullerton's budget has jumped to $327,525 from its $286,786 figure of last year. Garden Grove will carry an increase in its budget, this year's figure reading $77,725 as compared with $71,116 last year. Huntington Beach has the largest dollar and cent increase, the new budget calling for $224,967 as compared with last year's expenditures of $136,337.

The Newport Harbor High school district will spend $92,836, while last year it got by with only $81,195. In Orange a big increase is noted as this year's figure will bring in $158,900, while during 1936-37 it was $142,141. A $20,000 increase in Santa Ana expenditures will call for a total of $404,283, as compared with $386,271 last year.

ELEMENTARY
Tustin asks for an increase of only $240, as compared with $65,390. Last year her expenditures were $65,150. A total of 43 elementary districts will get the $2,068,503 figure for the next year, the report indicates.

Alamitos will get $5049 this year, as compared to $4980 last year. Anaheim is taking a cut in expenditures of almost $50,000 this year. Her budget for 1937-38 calls for $159,552, while in 1936-37 she spent more than $204,000. Brea, too, will take a cut, but only of $600. Her budget this year calls for $61,321, as compared with $61,900 last year.

COSTA MESA JUMPS
The total for Buena Park is set at $45,846, as compared with $38,121 last year. In the Central district another cut in expenditures is noted, as the budget calls for only $14,011, as compared to $15,318 for last year. Costa Mesa's total jumped some $6,000, to $65,475. Last year the total was $59,475. Her budget cut of $10,000 is registered as the expected expenditures this year reach only $23,090, as compared with $33,905 last year.

Diamond's budget is the same for both years, $7758. El Modena proposes a boost of $2000, to $32,200. Her last year's figure was $30,636. El Toro will save money on her schools this year, spending a total of $62,289, as compared with $63,82 last year.

GARDEN GROVE
Fountain valley will take a $300 cut, dropping its figure to $11,607. Last year the budget figure was $11,940. In Fullerton, another slash in expenditures is expected, this one totaling $7000. This year's figure reads $173,120, as compared with $180,065 last year.

Garden Grove proposes an increase to $21,000 from its $19,708 total of 1936. Greenville district will spend some $500 more as its expenditures rise to $3882 from $3393. Huntington Beach has a new elementary figure of $129,975, as compared with $123,000 last year.

Katella's proposed elementary expenditures this year total $14,630, as compared with $14,675 last year. The unified Laguna district will spend $110,832, as compared with $112,095 last year. La Habra reports an increase to $66,265 over its 1936 total of $62,482.

LOARA DROPS
Laurel district plans to spend $14,877 as compared with $13,700 last year. Loara region will reduce its expenditures $6000 this year to $12,560. Her last year's budget carried a figure of $18,493.

Magnolia has a straight figure of $18,000 as compared to $16,955 last year. Meanwhile Newport Beach will budget $71,050, as compared to $62,042 last year. Ocean View is planning a cut to $25,203, as compared with $26,425 last year.

Olinda district will have another cut, this one dropping the figure to $12,422, as compared with $15,030 last year. Meanwhile Olive will up her budget to a total of $13,235. Last year she spent only $10,535.

PLACENTIA
Orange's total for this year will be $88,465, while its total for 1936

Townsend News, Views

By
WALTER R. ROBB

Paul Gardner, Townsend speaker from the Belleflower district, will address the meeting at 7:30 this evening sponsored by Santa Ana Club No. 3 being held in Townsend hall at 509 West Fourth street. Phillip S. Doolittle, new president of the club, will preside over the meeting. Gardner has appeared in Santa Ana before the Townsend clubs before and always with an appreciative audience. He is a young man and brings the viewpoint of the younger generation to the aid of the Townsend cause. The public is cordially invited to come out and hear this speaker.

Costa Mesa club No. 1 meets tonight at 7:30 with Etta Bryant, new president, in the chair for the first time. The meeting will be held in the music room of the elementary school near the Costa Mesa Community church. The public is invited.

The Buena Park club is supposed to meet tonight in the Buena Park club building. For some time now this column has received no word as to this club's meeting. Why don't you folks of this club insist on your publicity chairman furnishing information that will keep your club's activities advertised?

Another club whose publicity chairman doesn't seem to sense that it pays to advertise is the Fullerton club No. 2. This column never receives a line from this club telling of its meetings. The writer wonders why? Its difference with Mrs. Ota Everett, president of Fullerton club No. 1. She is on the job to have her club's activities given publicity.

Santa Ana club No. 7 is meeting tomorrow night in the Orange avenue Christian church at McFadden and Orange streets with its new president, Mr. Lounsbury, in the chair. The meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock. The public is invited.

Santa Ana club No. 9 is meeting tomorrow evening in the home of C. A. Holloway, president, at 2027 Cypress street. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p. m. and membership is urged to be present.

Santa Ana Club No. 10 meets at 7:30 tomorrow evening in the Unitarian church, at Eighth and Bush streets, with R. E. Marks presiding. The public is invited.

Orange Club No. 2 meets tomorrow evening in the Townsend club building, located at 149 South Glassell street, with Judge L. F. Coburn presiding. The details of the meeting were not given the writer, but he knows that this club always has interesting meetings.

Santa Ana Club No. 11 meets tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the Franklin school building, at 1512 West Fourth street, with Fred Seifert, its new president, in the chair. The other particulars of the meeting had not been given the writer at the time this was written.

The writer was the speaker at Santa Ana Club No. 5 meeting Tuesday evening, and also acted in the installing of the club's latest elected officers. He found the club still enthusiastically back of Dr. Townsend, W. A. Zimmerman, president, presided. The writer was pleased to see J. A. Yerger and wife both able to be out and enjoy the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Dell Benton of the Tustin club were visitors as were a number of others.

was $83,975. Orangeflower will increase also as it calls for $12,411, as compared to $11,854. Paulino is slated to spend only $2612, as compared with $2478 last year. Meanwhile the unified Placentia district will spend $211,745, as compared with $215,545 last year.

San Clemente is budgeted to receive $11,741, while last year she got $11,237. The San Joaquin district will have the sum of $19,290, as compared with $18,246 last year. San Juan will spend $12,410 this year, while last year's expenditures were only $11,710.

SANTA ANA
Santa Ana claims the lion's share of the elementary fund, asking for $342,335, to run her schools. Last year the job cost only $313,885.

The Savana district has a budget request of $15,993, while last year it spent $16,172. Seal Beach asks for $34,451 this year, as compared with $27,118 last year. Serra cut her budget to $10,694. Last year she received $11,515. It will cost $3452 to run the Silverdale district. Last year the same job was done for $3430.

The total for Springdale remains the same as it was last year, $4425. Tustin will spend $53,672, as compared with $50,332 last year. Villa Park asks for a slight increase to $11,975. Last year her figure was $11,500. Westminster will slash expenditures to $28,760, as compared with $31,360 last year, while Yorba Linda asks for an increase to $22,284 over last year's figure of $14,750.

Sewing machines have been officially exempted from legal attachment in Peru.

There's regal dignity in the straight, slender line of the new silhouette. It's high in the neck-line for day-time wear, with shoulders accented but not so severely pointed. For evening, the low décolletage that characterizes a brilliant court, with new treatment of the classic draped line and variation in the bouffant skirts of the romantic period gown.

Skirt lengths, at long last, are not dictated. The only "must" is that they be worn where they are most becoming. Hence, the short dance frock will not dominate the evening scene—there'll be a few for those creatures—apart with race-horse ankles.

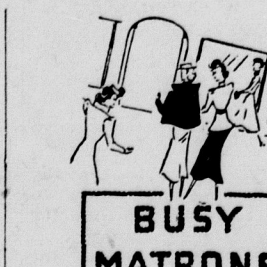

Fabrics are rich and varied, reflecting the Coronation note of brilliance and color. Silk jersey very much "in," both for daytime and evening. Granddame's alpaca for tailored and semi-tailored wear. New metallic-shot fabrics rival the medieval splendor that gathered on England's historic "Field of the Cloth of Gold." Plaids more popular than ever, in heavy silks as well as woolsens.

Trims and accessories run riot. Encrustations of gold, silver and beading. The glowing brilliance of precious jewels. Cut steel buckles on my lady's slippers. Lavish use of the more luxurious furs, recalling ermine-bedecked robes of Coronation nobility.

And with all the glamour of ancient courts of kings, there's the dash of 1937 streamlined America. It's going to be a Season!

BUSY MATRONS

FASHION SCOOP!

FLASH! Late summer and fall blacks are in! MATTINGLY'S has scooped again! An advance shipment, only just arrived. Silk jerseys and Alpaca (page great-grandma) strike the new note in fabrics, and they're introducing TWO 1937 shades of black: "Coal," with its shifting gray-blue sheen, and "Cave"—utter and absolute blackness. Alpaca ensembles: strictly tailored with touches of white, or more formal with capes and satin trim—one form-fitting gown that's a knock-out. They're cool for right now, yet have the zip of Autumn. From $12.95 to $19.50. At 220 West Fourth.

HURRY TO SAVE!

A REPUTATION is hard to keep for fifty-two years. Yet Roper's reputation for Quality is the same now that it was half a century ago. Combine with that long-standing dependability the most modern improvements in operation, safety features and design and you have the 1937 Roper Range. MR. C. R. STAUFFER, 212 N. Broadway, has made an offer—for a limited time, only—that makes ownership of a new Roper possible for every woman. There is an out-and-out saving of $28.45, plus an allowance on your old range and a generous payment plan.

HOW'S YOUR HANDWORK?

ONLY a hundred and thirty-six more working days 'til Xmas! Time to get started on that can-dlewick bedspread for Aunt Belinda. Just saw some lovely yarns in the REMNANT SHOP, 515 N. Main—a rainbow of colors. Bedspread blocks, too, that make attractive hot-dish mats and rugs, as well as bedspreads. Crocheted collars and cuffs are an important Fall fashion note—a few cents a set with the new glossy threads.

THAT CEMENT FLOOR

IT'S COLD and damp and drab. Something to lay over—colorful, like linoleum, and at the same time, water-proof and insulating—that would be your answer, wouldn't it? Grab your bonnet and dash down to HAMMOND BROS. CORP., 1246 S. Main—they've got it. It's asphalt tile. Comes in twenty colors!

SLIM AND TRIM

THAT extra snap to your vacation wardrobe and your early Fall street clothes—it's lost when your corset's old or improperly fitted. Now it's your chance! At RUTHERFORD'S, 515 East First, there's a 20 per cent reduction on all Gossard undergarments—and an expert corsetier to fit you. But there's not much time left! While you're there, ask to see the lovely, far-traveled Rochester hankies.

MORE TREASURE!

BEEEN browsing around that TREASURE ISLE again, at 506 North Main—can't stay away! Made a real discovery for a bridge prize today. And they're running on a week-end special—Thursday and Saturday only—at $1 apiece. Delightful little prints, 12x15 inches, for the completing touch in a bedroom or den. Don't miss them!

FRANCISCAN WARE—FOR A SONG!

IT'S NOT often that you can save $7.30 on dinnerware like Franciscan. Yet, that is exactly what you can do at HOMART'S, 211 North Broadway, where they are selling a 45-piece service for eight in Franciscan Ware for $12.95—for a limited time only. Franciscan is, unquestionably, the loveliest of the new American dinnerwares—its fame had reached my ears on the East Coast long before I turned an eye toward California. There is rare distinction in its suavity of line and delicacy of coloring that makes it worthy of your home.

DRESSING FOR FRUITS

Use orange juice in French dressings meant to be served with fruit salads. In recipes called for half a cup of lemon juice or vinegar use two tablespoons of lemon juice and add enough orange juice to complete the measurement.

FASHIONS IN FLOORS

THAT effect of spaciousness that some rooms achieve, even very small ones—how do they do it? First you'll find there's not a clutter of furniture, and what there is well arranged. Next, look at the floor. If the room looks larger than its actual size, there's a wall-to-wall carpet instead of rugs, which cut space. When we think of carpets, the name Broadloom comes to mind. But to many of us, Broadloom does not mean something special, hence expensive. So we probably ask to see "just plain carpets."

Actually, Broadloom is no different from any other carpet, except that, instead of being woven in set sizes, it is woven on wide looms—nine, twelve, fifteen or eighteen feet in width. Hence the name "Broadloom." This wide carpeting comes in the various well known weaves: The Axminster, Velvet, Pebble or Frieze; the Loop weave, High Pile—practically every type of weave made in the narrower widths. The ever increasing use of Broadloom, and the demand for color in the home have brought about the introduction of many new shades in carpeting. Some lines carry as many as fifteen to twenty different hues, where formerly there were only four or five. Moreover, if there is a particular shading desired to blend with your upholstery, natural carpet can be woven and dyed to conform to your own individual color scheme. What a long way from the dank greens and violent plush of just a few years ago!

Those years of the breath-taking horseless carriage—and the little brown ice-box that went bad when you forgot the ice sign. Like "Broadloom" in carpets, the name "Frigidaire" comes immediately to mind when we think of modern refrigeration. "Frigidaire" has become synonymous with "electric refrigerator" because Frigidaire was the pioneer in the field, and has built a reputation for dependability and service—and progress. Stop and see the latest Frigidaire improvements at CHANDLER'S, 218 N. Main, when you're looking at their assortment of fine Broadloom carpets.

MILADY'S MIRROR

FOR your Powder Room—a peach tinted mirror. In its reflection, lovely women are lovelier. Your guests will be happy and gay, feeling at their best. Have one in your living-room, too—parties will take on added sparkle. EUREKA PAINT AND GLASS STORE, 209 N. Main, has the largest stock of mirrors in the county—modernistic squares and rectangles. Novelty borders and trims. Early American Girondola frames with convex mirror. Pictures too, that make lovely gifts.

POTTERY SPECIAL

PACIFIC Pottery—one of the finest makes in California, famous for its unusual coloring. There's a lovely twenty-piece set in apricot and green at the CALIFORNIA PATIO POTTERY, 414 W. Fourth. Especially priced this week! Now is the time to lay away gifts, before that "prairie schooner," isn't it? For convenience and space-saving, the Corvett opens at the side, like an oven, leaving the top free at all times for an extra work table. The DUNSTAN ELECTRIC CO., 213 North Broadway, will be happy to demonstrate the new Hot Point Washer in your own home. Phone 4870.

COOKING'S FUN, IF—

SOME few of us can have fun cooking on anything that emanates heat. But here's one among many who doesn't. It's got to be a new G. E. with the exclusive Calrod Speed Unit, three times faster than gas and a hundred times safer. And clean! The top's all in one piece, so there's no reaching down and around to scrape off grease. Believe it or not, cooking's a joy on the G. E.

And, by the way, don't forget that offer at HILL & HILL, 3rd and Broadway—ten dollars given away on every first payment on a new G. E. Washer! You must mention this column or "Smilin'" Bill Hynds' KVOE daily broadcast at 3:30 p. m.

TICK TOCK

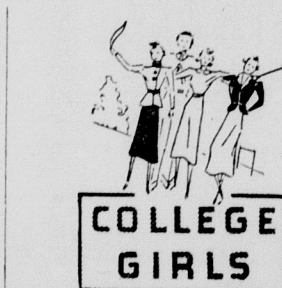

THAT touch of animation needed in every room is only possible through a clock. I've forgotten who said it, but the thought has remained. Have you every stopped to consider it? Think of the clocks of your acquaintance—some have even seemed to dominate human activity. The grandfather clock that frightened you as a child. The ladylike little gilt clock that frowned upon boisterousness. In H. R. TROTTS, Sycamore and Fifth, there are two Early American Banjo clocks that look as if they had a history. Mr. Trotts explained that they are exact reproductions, of two Willard heirlooms of the Revolutionary War period. Willard, you remember, originated the Banjo clock. The two Willard replicas at Trotts are identical to the almost priceless Willard originals—even to the weights. So authentic that they, in turn, will become heirlooms.

VACATION NEWS

WHAT a break—having your vacation now when you can get your holiday wardrobe at practically half the price! The clothes aren't picked over this year as they usually are around about now, due to the late Spring and Summer clothes break for you mid-season vacationists. Start filling your suitcase at RANKIN'S—you'll want two or three, at least, of those gala print silks and chiffons (with taffeta slips) they're featuring this week. Regular $16.75 to $23.50, especially priced for the mid-season at $11.00! There's a stunning dark saddle brown chiffon with a chain design in chateaux, very different looking. Black and white print silk, smartly sophisticated. "Luggage" and white polka-dot, deftly touched off with green buttons and ascot. Appealingly feminine affairs, light and airy and splashed with flowers—one carnation print particularly unusual. Ask to see the print silks on the Special—RANKIN'S Second Floor, Fourth and Sycamore.

AT LAST! A DISHWASHER

THAT REALLY DISHWASHERS WOULD you wash the whole family's tooth-brushes together in a basin of water? That, in fact, is what you're doing every day in your dish-pail. Unless you own a Hotpoint Dishwasher that's been tested and proven and really wide the billowy skirts. Or vivid and gay in a gypsy print chiffon. They're at SCULLER'S, 312 North Sycamore. On sale!

LADY OF THE EVENING

A SUMMER evening, warm and lush. Soft music. A lady lovely in a picture gown of sheer Burgundy, finely dotted in white, while organdy ruffles framing square neck-line and puffed sleeves—ruffled organdy slip holding wide the billowy skirts. Or vivid and gay in a gypsy print chiffon. They're at SCULLER'S, 312 North Sycamore. On sale!

BEAUTY ON A HOLIDAY

GUARANTEED to take the romance out of any vacation—straggling hair. Bugaboo of the well-groomed woman. But you simply can't anti-climax glorious days by battling for hours with curlers every night! So a new permanent for you, my lady—at the SANTA ANA UNIVERSITY OF BEAUTY CULTURE, 409 1/2 North Main, where they are constantly studying new and improved methods and there is complete and modern equipment to accommodate as many as 20 persons at one time. I'll tolerate no groans at the prospect, or whimpers that it's "too hot to be beautiful." The Machineless and Combo Waves have eliminated the necessity for broiling under a heavy machine. They're better for your hair, too, and last equally as long. Make an appointment today.

SERVICE

"SERVICE for Discriminating People"—the motto of the SUNSET CLEANING AND PRESSING SERVICE, 904 West Fourth. It's not an empty boast, for I find that the women who care about their garments and rugs entrust them to SUNSET. It is the only cleaning establishment in the community which uses the Hild System (on the floor) of rug and carpet cleaning. SUNSET service will call for and deliver at your home. Phone 449.

DO YOUR OWN

THOSE odds and ends of weather-beaten furniture you've been vaguely "going to do something about" . . . Now's the time. Pick out your enamel at DE GREGORY'S, 512 North Main. Do you know they have an antique glaze already put "up"? Simple as ABC!

LINEN-SHOD LADY

SUMMER shoes DO scuff up quickly, despite everything. Here's the half of July, August and September left and the shoe situation's already getting desperate. KRIEGER'S, at Fourth and Main, has that extra pair of white shoes you're looking for, to fill in 'til Fall. Cool linens with leather trim—easily cleaned. Reduced to $2.45. Fashioned in all widths, C to Triple A.

DODDER MOVES

MARION DODDER, a resident of Santa Ana for the past five years, is putting in a larger stock of finer quality jewelry at his new shop at 308 1/2 W. Fourth street. American made watches and jewelry, as in the past, will be featured—as well as a discriminating selection of modern diamond pieces.

Mr. Dodder came to California with Clyde Ashen in 1923 and was located in San Diego, where he was employed as watchmaker for Schiller's during a period of six years. From Schiller's, he went to Brock & Co. in Los Angeles, where he specialized, as watchmaker, in small and complicated time-pieces. His experience has been on many of the finest and smallest watches made—watches worth thousands of dollars, the property of distinguished patrons whose names are known around the world. While chatting with me the other day, Mr. Dodder recalled working on Col. Lindbergh's watch, before the famous flier's crossing of the Atlantic. William Wrigley and Mrs. Herbert Hoover have also been patrons of Mr. Dodder, as well as many of the popular Hollywood stars.

"We are in Santa Ana by choice," Mr. Dodder told me. "It's the finest community in the country and getting better all the time. We wish to thank our many friends for making this move possible. . . . We have tried hard to render prompt, accurate and honest service."

A MORE EXCITING YOU

THIS GOING TO be a very special vacation? Demanding a new and sparkling personality? You know, a change in hair style does more for the old morale than even a new dress. It changes the contours of your face, accents—if it's clever—your best points. Old friends see you in a new light, new acquaintances turn to look again. Of course, you have to find an expert—RENO'S new beauty studio at 715 N. Main has a windowful of trophies—awards for distinctive hair-styling. You owe it to yourself to phone for an appointment to be Reno-vated.

WORLD PREMIER

CECIL B. DEMILLE'S "King of Kings," recognized as the religious masterpiece of the screen, has been revived in sound! With all the original cast. Chosen for the World Premiere of the Revival is the PRINCESS THEATRE, where the great drama of the Holy Land will be shown Sunday and Monday, July 18 and 19.

SHRIMP CROQUETTES

Open 2 small cans shrimp and chop the shrimp. Mix with 1 tablespoon tomato paste, 1/4 cup boiled rice, 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped fine, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, a dash of cayenne pepper, 1/4 teaspoon powdered mustard and 1/4 cup rich milk. Mold into croquettes, roll in bread crumbs, then dip in beaten egg diluted with 1 tablespoon water and again in bread crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat until golden brown. Drain on soft paper.

TO REMOVE RUST

Beeswax mixed with equal portions of salt will remove rust from iron. Other stains and ways in which they may be removed are: (1) coffee, tea or chocolate stains on cups—moisten a little salt with cold water; (2) flower stains in vases—fill vase with a mixture containing two tablespoonsful of vinegar to each half cup of boiling water and wash it out—after ten minutes or so—in hot water and soap suds; (3) stains on brass or copper—use equal portions of salt and vinegar.

'PIRACY' IN BUSINESS
IS CHARGEDElectrical Firm Sues
Former Partner

Accusations of business "pirating" in violation of an agreement were made today by Hill and Hill, Santa Ana electrical dealers, against a former partner in the firm, Joseph A. Wilson, sr.

C. W. Hill, sr., and C. W. Hill, jr., filed injunction proceedings in superior court against Wilson and five John Does, charging that Wilson and his employees solicited business in Santa Ana after the defendant had signed a contract agreeing not to do electrical business here for five years.

CITES CONTRACT

Hill, sr., according to the complaint, bought out Wilson's interest in the business, then known as Wilson and Hill, for $5400 last Jan. 2, after the partnership had been in existence for one year.

In the contract introduced in evidence was a clause stipulating that Wilson was not to engage in electrical business in Santa Ana for five years, provided the Hills stayed in that business meanwhile.

Since then, according to the complaint, Wilson and his employees repeatedly have solicited and obtained business in Santa Ana while operating an electrical store in Orange.

DAMAGES

No accurate estimate can be made of the actual damage done their business, the Hills said, and therefore there is no remedy at law.

They ask the court to issue a temporary restraining order pending hearing on their request for an injunction. The complaint was filed by Franklin G. West, Santa Ana attorney.

Business Slumps
For City Judge

The poorest business day of the summer was experienced by Police Judge John Mitchell yesterday as only three persons appeared to pay fines totalling a mere $22.

All three pleaded guilty to speeding.

John H. Madison, Los Angeles, was fined $6; Irving Goldfeder, 128 South Cypress street, Orange, $8, and Frank C. Roberts, 324 East Truslow, Fullerton, $8.

Thief Goes in For Radiators

Fifteen second hand car radiators last night were reported stolen from the Santa Ana Salvage company at 915 East First street, by H. S. Pettigrew, owner.

Although no tracks or other clues were left, police believe that all the radiators were taken from the place over a high fence that surrounds the yard.

Hitler Youths Sound Warlike Salute

Youth of all nations receives increased attention in training, with Italy and Germany leading the movement. These lads are sounding trumpets for the opening of the "Camp of Germany" at Brandenburg. Some 1500 "Hitler Youths" from all over the world and 1500 German children spend vacations there.

CONCERT FOR ANAHEIM

With a full chorus of 25 voices and an orchestra of 35, conducted by Leon Eckles, with Miss Georgia Belle Walton featured as violin soloist, a public concert is announced for Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Greek theater in Anaheim.

The two music units of the Federal Music Project will combine to present the program. Miss Walton, who attracted the attention of critics at the age of six and who has since fulfilled her early promise in the established place she has won as concert violinist, will play Sarasate's "Romance Andaluza," accompanied by the orchestra.

Opening with the Freischütz Overture by Von Weber, the classic program will continue with a group of choruses, "The Heavens Are Telling," from the Oratorio, "The Creation," by Haydn; "The Omnipotence," by Schubert; and "Hail, Bright Abode," from Tannhauser.

The symphony orchestra will then perform Moszkowski's stirring Spanish Dances No. II and V. The chorus trained by Dudley Page Harper will again lend its voices in interpreting "Gloria," from the "Mass in B Flat," by Farmer, and the "Blue Danube Waltz" from the treasury of Strauss.

In a somewhat lighter vein will be the orchestra's presentation of "The March of the Little Tin Soldiers" by Pierné, closing with the French Military Marche from the Algerian Suite by Saint-Saens.

County Clerk Will Provide
License---But Not Girl

County Clerk Joe Backs doesn't mind fixing up the details for a fellow in love—such things as a marriage license—but the fellow's got to provide the girl.

Once in a long time Backs gets an appeal from a would-be husband who wants a wife but doesn't know any prospects.

One of those made a touching appeal today. Backs has his letter on file. Here it is:

"County Clerk, Orange, Calif. Dear Sir: Please have this letter put in all your papers and Anaheim. Call for a good true sincere girl for a wife one with a kind and loving nature and that don't smoke or use rouge to extreme good cook and housekeeper and a girl that is romantic and congenial one that like either city or country either a German Lutheran English Lutheran or American or German Protestant. This is no joke, if interested please send letter to and please give full description please not over 35 write Metro Station Box 1446, Los Angeles."

the general public to hear the federal musicians and singers.

In a somewhat lighter vein will be the orchestra's presentation of "The March of the Little Tin Soldiers" by Pierné, closing with the French Military Marche from the Algerian Suite by Saint-Saens.

SCOUTS ARE TO INVADE CANADA

Boy Scouts of Orange county will be given an opportunity to visit along the Pacific coast to Victoria, British Columbia, starting Aug. 2, it was announced today by Harrison E. White, county scout executive.

While urged that county scouts bring in their reservations to the scout office by next Monday or Tuesday, the trip, to be called the Rover Trip, will last about two and a half weeks.

The boys will leave Santa Ana in a bus, visiting the scenic spots of the coast. Various side trips will be made to places of historical and natural interest.

Points of interest to be visited by the scouts include the San Francisco and Oakland bridges, Redwood forest, Crater lake, Bonneville dam and many other sights.

According to the announcement sent out by White, it will cost the scouts $40. This sum pays for

FLOOD PERIL OUTLINED
FOR KIWANISEngineer Tells Plans
For Water Project

The "straight dope" on the flood control situation was outlined to the Kiwanis club yesterday by the man who has spent six years studying Orange county water problems—M. N. Thompson, flood control engineer.

Thompson told of the work of army engineers which led to a federal decision to undertake the projects provided the county shoulders a share of the burden, and explained in detail the work proposed.

The various dams, Thompson said, would be automatic in operation, distributing water so that it would be absorbed into the underground supply, not holding it in reservoirs.

One of the great water losses in the county, the engineer pointed out, is evaporation along the Santa Ana river amounting to some 25,000 acre feet a year.

The underground supply, according to Thompson, is being lowered at the rate of three or four feet annually. This loss would be abruptly checked upon completion of the dams.

Les Phillips of the Blue Note Music store was inducted into the club.

Pair Return to Face Theft Trial

Two young men, caught driving a car stolen from the Baldwin Motor company's used car lot last week, yesterday were returned to the Orange county jail after being questioned by Los Angeles officers.

The two were Clifford Willis Legendre, 21, of Carmel, and William Robert Kee, 19, of Denton, Texas.

Scout Delegate
Delays Return

Vernon Ashby, Orange county's only Boy Scout representative at the national jamboree in Washington, D. C., is spending the rest of the summer with his aunt in Alexander, Va.

Young Ashby, who lives at 515 West Wisteria, was among several hundred Southland Scouts to attend the jamboree. He is a high school student and the son of Mrs. G. E. Ashby.

CLEARING OF RIVER BED
TO CONTINUEWater District Hears
Progress of Work

Continuance of work in clearing the bed of the Santa Ana river was approved by the board of directors of the Orange County Water district yesterday.

W. C. Mauerhan, in charge of the work, reported that the river bed had been cleared and ditched for a mile below the narrows. In another two weeks, with an additional expenditure of some $300, the rest of the trees, undergrowth and debris which would retard absorption can be removed, Mauerhan estimated.

Chairman Willis Werner read a letter from Herbert C. Legg, chairman of the Los Angeles county water control district, inviting him to attend the dedication of the completion of the filled section of the San Gabriel dam on July 21.

After some discussion as to whether the letter was an invitation to the whole board, several members decided they would attend whether officially invited or not.

A vote authorized the chairman to appoint a committee to work on segregation of the budget to eliminate certain expenditure difficulties.

Breakfasters Get Gospel Message

Gospel and song were brought to the breakfast club this morning by the preaching and singing evangelists, "Cyclone" Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey, who are conducting revival services at the Four Square Gospel church. The Rev. W. C. Parham, Four Square minister, presented the speaker, singer and harpist. C. D. Lindsay had charge of the program. Evangelist Jackson talked briefly about religion and cooperation, and religion's place in business.

Mrs. Ramsey's harp selection was "When He Comes," followed by a popular number in response to appreciative applause. Mr. Ramsey sang "When the Heart Is Young" and "The Stranger of Galilee" as an encore.

The program next week will be presented by the Santa Ana Neon company, with Harold Mathews in charge.

Watch for Animals

Dog owners of Orange county were warned today by Harold Pickering, Santa Ana poundmaster, to be on the lookout for rabid dogs from Los Angeles.

Since Los Angeles county is under rabies quarantine, it is necessary that dogs from that county not be permitted to mingle with dogs in this county, Pickering pointed out. He said he had picked up nine dogs with Los Angeles county licenses in the past month.

While it is permissible to have the outside dogs leashed and muzzled while in this county, dog owners should take the precaution of watching out for Los Angeles dogs, Pickering said.

Pickering attributed the prevalence of Los Angeles county dogs in this county to the fact that many people have brought their pets to the beaches or to relatives and have allowed them to go free.

GOOD BUSINESS

Who wouldn't accept a $15,248,000 flood control and water conservation program at a cost of only $2,500,000? It would be poor business not to accept the generous offer of the government to pay $12,748,000 of the total cost in an OUTRIGHT GIFT. We need flood control. We need water conservation. We can get both and more by voting the water bonds July 27—we can get jobs for more than a thousand men for three years. Wages paid these men alone will be nearly double Orange county's total cost!

Let's Settle This Water Problem for All Time on

A GOOD BARGAIN

Sure, it's a bargain! But what are we going to do about it? Pass up a chance to settle our water problems for all time by being indifferent? Let's get going! A chance like this likely will never come again. For one-sixth of the cost of the water project (the government pays the other five-sixths) we will get: Eight mighty flood control reservoirs, conservation of an average of 41,000 acre feet of water annually, jobs for more than a thousand men and a boom in business such as never has been experienced in Orange county.

New Officers Inducted By Rebekahs

Torosos Install Mrs. McDonald as Their New Noble Grand

During colorful formal rites in the I. O. O. F. hall last night, a group of women were installed as officers of Toros Rebekah lodge to serve for the ensuing lodge year.

Mrs. Olive M. Patton, district deputy president, conducted the installation in a hall made lovely with baskets of bright flowers. She wore a rose lace frock, and her assistant, Mrs. Edna Gruenwald, marshal, was gowned in a peach lace dress. Her staff of 10 guards who acted as escorts wore pastel-colored gowns.

Mrs. Gladys McDonald, leading her group of fellow officers, all white-clad, was installed as noble grand. Mrs. Mary Ann Knox became vice noble grand, and Mrs. Irene Lancaster, junior past noble grand.

Other new officials are Mrs. Ada M. Spencer, recording secretary; Mrs. Leota Allen, financial secretary; Mrs. Ethel Brown, treasurer; Mrs. Fanny M. Lacy, chaplain; Mrs. Othello Grey, musician; Mrs. Clara Hilyard, outside guard; and Mrs. Alice Tolhurst, inside guard.

Completing the list of officers are Mrs. Minnie Squires, warden; Mrs. Amanda Poor, conductor; Mrs. Martha Van de Walker, right supporter of the noble grand; Mrs. Laura Tramel, left supporter of the noble grand; Mrs. Mildred Adams, right supporter of the vice grand; Mrs. Martha McKee, left supporter of the vice grand. Four banner bearers will be Mrs. Nanny Meyers, Mrs. Blanche Cartmel, Mrs. Mary Schlusman and Mrs. Winona Cottrell.

Many visitors from all over Southern California attended the installation ceremony. Out-of-state guests were Mrs. Martha Perrin and Mrs. Bertie M. Launbach of Sioux City, Iowa, and Mrs. Helen Elroy of Kansas.

Plans were announced for the new officers for a public motion picture party to be held in the I. O. O. F. hall Wednesday, July 28, when a short movie will be presented by a dairy company at 9 p. m. The picture will be free to the public and will be preceded by a pot-luck dinner for lodge members.

ARMESIS CLUB MEETS AT JENNINGS' HOME

Armes club members are anticipating a delightful August meeting for they and their husbands will be entertained at a garden supper party then by Mrs. Will Currutt at her Huntington Beach home.

The club was hosted yesterday by Mrs. Ora Jennings at 901 West Third street, and had a brief business meeting conducted by Mrs. J. A. McWilliams, president.

After an evening of cards, with high and low prizes going to Mrs. Charles Mitchell and Mrs. McWilliams, the hostess spread small tables with dainty linens and served delicious refreshments. Centrepieces consisted of a variety of lovely dahlias sent by Mrs. Elmer Smith to decorate Mrs. Jennings' living room.

Guests at the affair were Mrs. J. A. McWilliams, Mrs. Glenn Lyman, Mrs. C. A. Rousseau, Mrs. Earl Lindig, Mrs. Elmer Smith, Mrs. Charles Ryan, Mrs. Douglas Peddy, Mrs. Ray Graham, Mrs. Charles Mitchell and Mrs. Tom Wilson of San Pedro.

EIGHTSOME IS ENTERTAINED AT RAPP HOME

With informality as the keynote, Mrs. Howard Rapp yesterday gave one of a series of summer luncheon parties in her pretty home on North Greenleaf street.

Colorful daisies and petunias from her own garden accented the living-room and its two small tables where lunch was served.

At the conclusion of the eight-some of contract, Mrs. Arthur Trawick was presented with a pretty prize for holding high score. Other guests of Mrs. Rapp were Mrs. Byron Curry, Mrs. Dan E. Maloney, Mrs. Alda Worwick, Mrs. Thomas Trawick, Mrs. John McCarty and Mrs. Clare Johnson.

WELFARE FOLK ENTERTAINED

Miss Katherine Adams, case supervisor of the Orange county welfare department, entertained a group of her associates from the welfare department at her Laguna Beach cottage, corner of St. Anne's and Wilson streets, last night.

About 50 workers in the welfare department attended the party and enjoyed the steak and picnic dinner. Following the dinner, some of the group went swimming and joined in beach games before returning to their homes.

Young Woman Now Regrets 'Marriage' to 'Jim' Without Legal Ceremony

Beware of the smooth-tongued man who vows that he will love you devotedly through fair weather and foul—that he wants you needs you—and will protect you if you will but come to him now, and he'll marry you later!

What a dear price we often pay for experience. But it is said that it is the only school in which fools will learn. If there are any girls who are smitten by the silvery tones of the smooth-tongued man and his promises, perhaps they will gather their cloak of respectability closely about them and hasten away from the chasm when they read this young woman's letter:

Dear Miss Stoddard: Mine is a tale as old as the Sphinx. You have helped countless people through your column, and may be able to do as much for me.

I am a young woman in my early 30's, neither smoke nor drink, am a good housekeeper and try to be all a wife should be and to get to the point—I am not a wife, just a mistress in good standing in our community.

Six years ago I met and fell in love with (well, let's call him Jim), and became engaged. Conditions were such at the time we could not marry—namely, we must await Jim's final divorce papers. To get to the point, we set up housekeeping in a new town, most popular and liked people.

Jim has a wonderful job and I have done much charity work and made myself generally useful. All in all, we are the tops to our neighbors and employers. But every time the subject of marrying is brought up, it ends in a free-for-all.

Jim says, "Why worry now?" and that it would practically be impossible to do it now. Naturally I can't raise a family, as I want to. He says he has one child by a former wife now to support, and I should be content with my lot.

But somehow I have a yen to call it quits and start over and live right.

He values his job and social standing far above my feelings, I worry, should anything happen I couldn't collect his insurance. I would be ruined from every standpoint.

I want to get married or call it quits. It is making a wreck out of me. He is a man that cannot be reasoned with, and says that I am lucky to have a home at all.

Do you or your readers think I am unreasonable to demand a showdown? This whole affair is not secure enough for me to continue much longer.

He has everything at stake. To the world we are an ideal, lovable couple. They marvel at our happiness. But I am sick at heart. Sometimes I feel like screaming to the world the whole story. But my family lives in another part of the world. I need help—not financially, but spiritually even though I go to church and want to do what's best for all concerned. Sincerely, B. R. C.

If there ever was a time when a woman's head should rule her heart, it is in your case. Those pangs of conscience which sting you is your head flashing danger signals to your errant heart. Take heed of them.

This bigoted, selfish man can't even put up a fair argument. You might easily go to a small town, some distance away and be quietly married. He is just like any other man who would make such a proposal. He cannot respect your wishes because he does not respect you.

You shouldn't think of his parents or anyone else being considered above your own best interests, because they wouldn't even thank you for it under the circumstances. That's why you shouldn't scream to the world your sad plight. Have that showdown and if he proves himself a being void of all honor, pack your grip and go—the farther, the better and better luck next time. I'm

MANY ATTEND ANNUAL W. C. T. U. LUNCHEON

Showing of a sound film, "The Beneficent Reprobate," and a review of the world's W. C. T. U. convention in Washington, D. C., were the highlights of the annual membership luncheon of the Santa Ana W. C. T. U. Tuesday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. building.

About 125 members and their friends attended the pot-luck luncheon and meeting, and several new members were welcomed into the organization by Mrs. Anna Hill.

The film is a Burton-Holmes educational short subject and was presented by C. A. Watson, a Los Angeles practicing attorney who was a vice-presidential candidate on the Prohibition ticket last fall. Mrs. Lola Dunham Grimm, county president, who had just returned from the convention, gave the highlights of the meeting, describing the delegates from 35 nations, some of whom arrived in native costume.

Mrs. Artie Warner presided as toastmistress for the meeting, introducing the speakers for the afternoon. Devotions were led by the Rev. C. D. Hicks. Miss Betty Jane Corn, delegate to the Young People's Temperance council early this month, gave a report of the convention held at Pacific Palisades.

Two young girls, winners in the medal recitation contest, then prize-winning recitations under the direction of the contest director, Mrs. Ora Hicks. They were Laura Jean Misner and Christine Hansen. Mrs. Anna Hill, former county president, gave a summary of the founding of the W. C. T. U. in Orange county.

Musical selections were offered by Mrs. Arthur May, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Lord Is My Light." She was accompanied by Mrs. Hamilton.

Table decorations of small pots with growing plants and ferns were arranged by Miss Louise Brokaw, who was also general chairman for the luncheon.

TWO-IN-ONE CLASS HAS PICNIC DINNER

About 60 members of the Two-in-One class of the First Methodist church and their families and guests were present for a pot-luck picnic dinner in Jack Fisher park last evening.

Following the dinner, the group gathered in the bowl to hear talks by Mr. and Mrs. Allan Elston on a trip through the Samoan Islands.

Committees in charge of the picnic were Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Schweitzer, program chairman; Mrs. Luella Blackburn, refreshment chairman; and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Theal, and Mrs. Nora Schicht.

Included in the picnic party were the Messrs. and Mesdames George F. Ange, E. F. Blake and family, R. E. Brown and daughter, P. H. Budd, Allan V. Elston, W. R. Freeman, W. D. Finn and son, DeEstin, C. N. Grace and family, Charles E. Lawrence, Arthur Pearson, Joe Randall and daughters, George W. Townsend, E. E. Ullrich, S. S. Vogt, George Cocking and J. C. Elston.

Mrs. Ruth Walker and daughter, Mrs. Chastain, Mrs. Jennie Garner and daughter Dorothy, Mrs. Emma H. Carhart, Mrs. Marie Fowler, and George E. Faires.

ROBINETTES ENTERTAIN PINOCCHLE CLUB

A dainty color scheme of pink and white was carried out in table appointments, tallies, and flowers last night when Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Robinette of 712 West Cubbon street entertained members of their monthly pinocchle club.

After an enjoyable evening of pinocchle, climaxed by a delicious refreshment course, the high score prize went to Mrs. Emmert Lippincott.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robinette were Mr. and Mrs. William Eckles, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lacy, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Elzea, Mr. and Mrs. Emmert Lippincott, and Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Edwards.

DORCAS CLUB HAS INDOOR BEACH PARTY

A beach playground, complete with umbrellas, blankets, and beach toys, welcomed members and guests of the Dorcas club of the First Christian church when they met Tuesday night in the education building of the church.

A bathing beauty contest was held among members dressed in beach costumes, and judged by others in street dress. Prizes were awarded to the victors. After beach games were played and entertainment provided by Miss Evelyn Skinner on the electric guitar, a picnic lunch was served.

Mrs. Marie Steen led the prayer service. During the business meeting, Mrs. Kathryn Pratt was initiated as a new member and three guests welcomed. Visitors were Mrs. Velma Patrick, Mrs. Eddie Hurd, and Mrs. Kemper of Berkeley.

A baby blanket, the traditional love-gift of the club was presented to Mrs. Ernest Hill. A committee appointed to arrange the husbands and wives banquet in September will consist of the Mesdames Halie Copeland, Lillian Williams, Helen Humphreys, Lois Klammer, Dorothy Hurd, Bessie Calhoun, and Gladys Sullivan.

Hostesses for the beach party meeting were the Mesdames Pauline Hofteller, Lillian Stewart, Mary Alice Branson, Gretchen Hill, Violet Campbell, and Mabel Morison.

FRIENDS LEARN ENGAGEMENT NEWS AT PARTY

Gaiety of Miss Nadine Heartfield's birthday celebration Tuesday night gave place to excited congratulations when her friends learned of her forthcoming marriage to Roy Wentzel.

Announcement was made by dainty scrolls attached to small yellow candles that served as placecards. The occasion was a garden party given to celebrate Miss Heartfield's twentieth birthday by Mrs. Grace Heartfield and Mrs. Lee Wentzel, mothers of the engaged couple.

Miss Heartfield is a graduate of Fullerton Union High school, and attended a local business college. She is now employed in the recorder's office in the court-house.

The groom-elect, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wentzel, 1123 West Fifth street, attended Huntington Beach High school. He is employed by a local bottling company.

Guests at the garden party in the Wentzel home were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Applebury, Lee Wentzel and son Dwight, Miss Juanita Wentzel of Long Beach, Miss Virginia Goldstein, Miss Evelyn Quill, Johnnie Falkerts, S. J. Crane and Clyde Williams of Huntington Beach.

FAHOLO CLASS HAS DINNER ON CHURCH LAWN

Broiled steaks and a covered dish dinner was served to members of the Faholo class of the First Baptist church Monday evening when they met on the church lawn.

Miss Edna Ingham and Miss Irene Catland acted as hostesses, serving a dessert course and coffee to members and their guests. A business meeting was followed by a social evening around the bonfire.

Members and guests present were the Mesdames Roy Siden, P. J. Reifel, L. C. Davidson, Victor Soper, William Latham, Charles Eyer, J. Leslie Steffensen, L. G. Rowell, J. C. Johnson, J. E. Swanke, Clyde E. Cave, Lester Platt, William E. Dennis, Roscoe Moore, J. W. Brown, and W. A. Atkinson.

Also in the group were the Mesdames Irene Catland, Irene Cradock, Edna Ingham, Ella Vezie, Vera Cord, Ruth Codd, Ruth Sanford, Barbara Davidson, and Beulah Parker.

CONFERS HAVE EASTERN GUESTS

Two visitors from the East were guests of Mrs. Ida Confer and family in their home, 709 East Fifth street, during the past week. Mrs. George P. Hale of Bovill, Idaho, visited in the Confer home the first part of the week, while Mrs. A. A. Simpson of Tingley, Iowa, spent the latter part of the week there.

Layering is a much-used method of obtaining new plants. This is practiced in nature by certain plants that send out new shoots close to the ground, and these, in turn, send out shoots which may be separated from the parent plant.

The easiest plants to divide are such things as phlox, mitchella, daisies and delphinium. These can be cut or pulled apart and the pieces planted. If one needs a quantity of plants, the stalks may be divided as long as a few uninjured roots remain on each bit. If one doesn't need so many plants, better blooms may be had the following summer if the parent is divided into only three or four new plants.

Primulas, heucheras, saxifragas and all those from the hen-and-chicken group are made up as a rosette. Upon examination, smaller rosettes will be found. These small rosettes may be separated from the parent and be replanted. Care must be exercised to obtain roots on each little plant, and plenty of water is required to get them started.

It is sometimes possible to increase the plant number by breaking off side shoots of such plants as Japanese anemones, delphinium and bleeding heart. Occasionally bits of roots break away from the separated shoot, but in event that no roots come they are very easily rooted in sand.

The plants that are hardest to divide, or rather, require the most skill to divide successfully, are those with fleshy roots meeting at a crown where the following year's flowers will sprout from the eyes. In the division of the group, one must be careful to preserve an eye on each section of root.

The group will include bleeding heart, peonies, gypsophila and others. It is safe to divide the plants after the season of bloom, yet it is always possible throughout the dormant season of winter. It is a good idea to cut the tops back to three or four inches when the dividing is done.

BRINKERHOFFS LEAVE TONIGHT

Leaving tonight by train, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Brinkerhoff and children, Carroll, Jean and Jack, 2027 Greenleaf street, will spend a three or four week vacation in the Middle West.

The local group plan to center their activities around St. Louis and Chicago on this, their first trip East since moving to California. They will spend some time with Mrs. Brinkerhoff's mother, Mrs. James Cross, in her home in St. Louis. Later they will visit Mr. Brinkerhoff's mother, Mrs. A. S. Brinkerhoff in Salem, Ill.

COCKTAIL SAUSAGES

To cook cocktail sausages first pierce each one with a fork so it will not burst when cooking. Put the sausages in a frying pan and cover with hot water. Allow them to simmer 10 minutes, then drain and serve. Cocktail sausages also may be broiled for five minutes.

BAG AND SHOE ENSEMBLES

NEW YORK. (AP)—Fall bag and shoe ensembles have come to town. The shoes are high-fitting designs of black suede trimmed with black patent leather. The bags are handled designs combining the same leathers.

Initiation Is Preceded By Dinner

Formal initiation of two popular debutantes into Sigma Tau Psi was an enjoyable event of last evening. Only a small number of members of the social sorority were able to be present for the affair, but it was nevertheless carried out with impressive dignity.

The ceremony was preceded by a dinner at Daniger's. Ample and purple petunias contrasted prettily with the tall rose tapers and colored pottery that decorated the long table at which formally clad young women were seated.

Later the group adjourned to a private room, where Mrs. Van Pomeroy, wearing a dainty frock of yellow organza, acted as mistress of ceremonies. Candidates were Miss Lois Murray, wearing a pale blue lace with pink accents, and Miss Dorothy Van Deusen, in white embroidered organza over pale green. Both wore gardenias sent them by the chapter. Prominent in the ceremony, too, was Miss Virginia Curry, president of the group, who wore a pretty frock of dark blue. Miss Curry was assisted in making arrangements for the evening by another member, Mrs. Ray Cartwright.

The evening was concluded with a contract session at which Miss Barbara Davis scored high, and Mrs. Pomeroy, second.

Members present included Miss Murray, Miss Van Deusen, Mrs. Pomeroy, Miss Curry, Miss Davis, Miss Beth Emison, Miss Dee Pettitt, Miss Helen Andrews, Miss Ruth Baker, Miss Loretta Spangler, Miss Eleanor Randolph, Miss Betty Wiswall, and Mrs. George Preble.

SIX DELEGATES COMPLIMENTED AT DINNER

Six Santa Ana young women were entertained as delegates of the Pi chapter of Sigma Tau Psi at a dinner given in the Hotel Riviera, Long Beach, Tuesday night by Gamma Alpha Sigma sorority of Long Beach.

Red roses, sweet peas, and greenery used as floral decorations contrasted pleasantly with the green, black and silver of the place cards and favors. A business meeting presided over by Miss Emma Swanson, president of the hostess sorority, followed the dinner.

Local delegates to the dinner were Miss Fern Berkner, Miss Jane Hill, Miss Marjory Hutchinson, Miss Dorothy Skinner, Mrs. Herbert Hill, and Mrs. Woodrow Barnett.

A large box of candy passed to members of Sigma Tau Psi during last week's meeting in Fern Berkner's home, 2431 Riverside drive, served to announce the engagement of Sigma Tau Psi to Wesley Hauck. The wedding will take place next January. Miss Thebeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Thebeau of Las Vegas, Nev., is a former resident of Santa Ana.

Members of Sigma Tau Psi present at the dinner were the Mesdames Herbert Hill, Woodrow Barnett, Max Wilson, Fayette Birtcher, George Anderson, Thomas Jentges, T. E. Stephenson, Jr., and Lee Hansenjager.

Also in the group were the Mesdames Genevieve Glover, Eleanor Evans, Fern Berkner, Betty Marston, Dorothy Oharr, Marjory Hutchinson, Vivian Kaufman, Jane Hill, Lucy Holmes, Dolly Cox, Jean Berry, Jewel Thebeau, Dorothy Skinner, and one pledge, Miss Charlotte Barker.

MAIN DISHES SATISFY APPETITES

There is no appetite-teaser like an empty stomach, so that your family gets out of doors as much as possible, these sunny days. Encourage exercise and don't feed them too often—certainly not more than three good meals a day. But plan good, satisfying main dishes for the healthy appetites thus aroused.

FRENCH CHICKEN

For a serving of 6, use 3 small spring chickens weighing about 1½ pounds each. Cut into 4 pieces each and saute in ¼ pound sweet butter until golden brown all over. Put in 2 dozen small peeled mushrooms and 2 dozen tiny white onions. Stir, cover and put in 1 cup chicken stock. Remove the chicken to a hot platter. Add to the pan in which the chicken was cooked ¼ pound salt pork cut into small cubes and 1 teaspoon chopped shallots. When half done add 2 cups Burgundy wine. Simmer until the sauce is reduced to about half, then add 1 cup chicken broth and 1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed to a paste with cold water. Stir until very smooth, season to taste with salt and pepper and pour the sauce over the chicken.

With crusty French bread and a salad made from tender leaves of escarole, romaine, dandelions and finely chopped fine herbs you have almost a complete meal. For a French touch, rub a cut clove of garlic all over a small piece of bread, crumble and add to the salad greens. Dress with a well seasoned French dressing.

COCKTAIL SAUSAGES

To cook cocktail sausages first pierce each one with a fork so it will not burst when cooking. Put the sausages in a frying pan and cover with hot water. Allow them to simmer 10 minutes, then drain and serve. Cocktail sausages also may be broiled for five minutes.

Ether-Oil Injection Reduces Pain

By C. N. CHRISMAN, M. D.

A new method to reduce the extreme pain of childbirth has been perfected. The treatment is not harmful to those who have kidney, heart, or liver trouble. It requires no expensive equipment or technical skill. The pain is controlled from first to last in most cases by use of ether in oil injected into the large intestine. A cleansing enema of a tablespoonful of baking soda in a quart of warm water is used first. This is followed in an hour or less by one or two capsules of half grain capsules of "pinto-barbital sodium" repeated as necessary. Later a solution of two and a half ounces of ether in an ounce and a half of olive oil is injected.

This treatment can be repeated as necessary and can be kept up for hours. The patient remains conscious of what is going on around her but the pain is so dulled that she sleeps most of the time. This procedure can be sustained for twenty-four to thirty-six hours if necessary with no apparent harm to mother or child. Ether anaesthesia can be induced in the late stages if necessary for any operative course found to be needed.

In 20,000 cases no harmful effects have been observed. Childbearing should be robbed of its discomforts and extreme pain as far as possible, but after all, the matter of making childbirth easier is not by any means the important part of conserving the mothers of our land.

Before the 17th century, a physician was not allowed to attend a woman in confinement. Today when humanity might demand that we make the duty of reaping the harvest of a comparatively safe task, it is our duty to thousands of mothers die needlessly in childbirth.

Begin With Eyes In Self Improvement

By JACQUELINE HUNT

Self-improvement begins with the eyes, since they are your most important feature. To find out how to apply your eye make-up correctly, check through the following list of eye faults and find those you should correct before you begin to apply your cosmetics. Are your eyes large or small compared to the size of your head? If they are too small then concentrate on the tricks that will make them seem larger. If they are already large, dark and luminous, then you have little to do except brush your brows and lashes to make them seem moist and youthful.

How does the color of your eyes compare with your skin and hair? If too light, then darken your lashes and use eye shadow of the same color as your eyes to make them seem darker and lovelier.

Color of your lashes? If dark, apply oil to give them gloss. If too light or too thin, use mascara for color and body—brown if you are blonde or more, black if you are a flaming redhead or have dark brown or black hair.

What about the space between your eyes and eyebrows? If your eyes are close-set, make them appear wider by plucking the hairs that grow in too far over the bridge of the nose. Too far apart? Then darken the inner tips of your eyebrows lightly and use shadow well in toward the nose.

Did you ever notice the outer corners of your eyes? Are they in a straight line with the inner corners or do they drop or turn up? Notice this feature. It can be made to give your face individuality by accenting or minimizing the peculiarity. If they turn down, you can give your eyes a languorous, luctive look by brushing your lashes down at the outer corners and drawing a tiny downward slanting line at the corners with your eyebrow pencil.

If they turn up you can give your face an exotic, Oriental look by shaping your eyebrows slightly to follow this same upward movement and using your eye shadow properly. If the corners of your eyes are nearly level, you can get a laughing expression by darkening both upper and lower lashes slightly and curling the upper lashes up.

About Folks

Mrs. L. R. Richardson and daughter, Virginia, have come from Enid, Okla., to spend the rest of the summer with the Frank Hoffmans on McFadden street. Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Hoffman are sisters.

Mrs. Roscoe Hewitt of 2414 Bonnie Brae and her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Duggan Landin of New York City, are spending two days at Catalina.

Mrs. Mary Boehner, 1516 West First street, is visiting in Los Angeles and Glendale for two weeks. Her son, W. C. Kuebler of the same address, is convalescing from a serious illness.

Mrs. R. I. Matthews and son, John, of 2409 North Main street, who are visiting in South Bend, Ind., are expected to return the middle of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McFarland (Ruth Beemer) expect to leave for San Diego in the near future to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Knudsen and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Green (Frances Knudsen) have gone East by train, planning to buy new cars and tour through Illinois and Ohio, visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Knox of 801 South Ross street have returned from a week's vacation in Catalina.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Krahling of 411 East Twentieth street have been shaping their eyebrows slightly to follow this same upward movement and using your eye shadow properly. If the corners of your eyes are nearly level, you can get a laughing expression by darkening both upper and lower lashes slightly and curling the upper lashes up.

Home Service Fun to Tell Fortunes And Simple to Learn

Lots of Attention for You! How the crowd hangs on your words as you say, "Yes, Jack, your wish comes true." And, whether you use cards, tea leaves or some other way, you find fortunes not only a quick but an easy way to popularity. Jack's wish? That's simple. You choose his name card according to coloring, as he's blond he's king of diamonds. Then Jack shuffles while he concentrates on his wish. He cuts and turns up perhaps the 10 of hearts. Then he deals in three piles. If the nine of hearts appears in the same pile with his name card, his wish comes true.

Tea leaves? The cup handle stands for the person; the leaves near the rim for events in the near future; those at the bottom for distant events.

From our 32-page booklet you can learn in no time how to tell fortunes from cards, tea cups, horoscopes, dreams. Fortune games for holiday parties, bazaars. Send 10 cents for your copy of Fun With Fortune-Telling to The Santa Ana Journal Home Service, 117 East Fifth street. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARE WEAPONS OF STRIKERS

CHICAGO. (AP)—A young student testified at an inquest fire-arms, clubs, pieces of hose and lead pipes were carried by men at a mass meeting preceding the Memorial day steel strike rioting that brought death to ten persons near the Republic Steel corporation plant here.

Jean Garey, 19, who said she was a student at the Francis W. Parker school, a private institution, explained she attended the meeting "out of curiosity" and heard speeches directed at "steel bosses."

"I don't feel the police were unjustified in their action," she testified. "I heard one striker say, 'If the cops get tough with us, we'll get tough with them.'"

Carl Linde, an Associated Press photographer, testified he was present at the mass meeting and estimated at 1000 the number of persons who marched toward the plant and 200 as the number of policemen lined up to turn them back.

When the marchers approached the police line, Linde said, Capt. Thomas Kilroy waved them back and said, "No statement which the photographer said he could not hear."

"Before we knew it, clubs were flying through the air and fighting started."

JAPAN HONORS PASADENA MAN

PASADENA. (AP)—The order of the sacred treasure, bestowed by the Japanese emperor, will be presented to Dr. James A. B. Scherer, Pasadena educator and world traveler, on July 23.

A letter from the Tokyo government to Japanese Consul Tomokazu Hori said the honor is conferred upon Dr. Scherer "for invaluable service in the cause of international understanding."

He is former president of the California Institute of Technology and has been a student of oriental affairs for 40 years.

L. A. WPA Rolls Now at 37,091

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Los Angeles county WPA employees now number 37,091. Col. Donald H. Connolly, head of the WPA administration, reported. Reduction to this figure, ordered by national officials, was accompanied by laying off class "B" employees, consisting of those less capable physically.

Further reductions during the remainder of the summer will be made, Connolly said. As a result, aliens not possessing first citizenship papers will be removed from the rolls.

Battle Monuments Board to Europe

NEW YORK. (AP)—Josephus Daniels, World war secretary of the navy and now ambassador to Mexico, sailed for Europe yesterday with 14 other members of the American battle monuments commission.

Ambassador Daniels said the members would join with Gen. John J. Pershing, head of the commission, in "dedicating the battlefields and cemeteries where more than 30,000 of our heroic dead lie."

Bolivia Installs New President

LA PAZ, Bolivia. (AP)—Lieut. Col. German Busch, 35-year-old veteran of the Chaco war, assumed Bolivia's highest political office with a pledge of "absolute respect toward international treaties and agreements."

The provisional presidency was handed over to Busch last night by Col. David Toro, who said he resigned to give the army a free hand in rendering an expression of confidence in his 14-month-old regime.

Start 28 New Oil Wells in Week

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—Oil drillers started 28 new wells in California fields last week—a step up from the 21 of the preceding week. The report of R. D. Bush, state supervisor, showed 839 starts thus far this year, while 288 were abandoned.

Last year in the like period 566 new wells were started and 263 abandoned.

The Wilmington field drilling went ahead at top speed, 15 wells being started this week.

NON-STOP HOPS BEGAN IN 1910

By the Associated Press
Modern long distance non-stop flying may be said to have begun with Charles A. Lindbergh's memorable New York-to-Paris hop May 20 and 21, 1927, then a record at 3610 miles.

A few days later Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine flew 3305 miles from New York to Eisleben, Germany, setting a new mark.

Russell N. Boardman and John Polando, set the record which still stands for Americans. It was 5011 miles from New York to Istanbul, Turkey, July 28-30, 1931.

Two British officers, Squadron Leader O. R. Gifford and Flight Lieut. G. E. Nicholls, took the honor from the Americans in February, 1933, flying 5341 miles from Cramwell, England, to Walfish Bay, South Africa.

The French fliers, Maurice Rost and Paul Codos set the record broken by the Russians today—5557 miles in August, 1933, from New York to Rayak, Syria.

The first Russians to fly over the North pole to the United States, Valeri Chkaloff, Georgi Baidukoff and Alexander Beliaukoff, flew 5288 miles from Moscow to Vancouver, Wash., a few weeks ago.

Elks to Reduce Subordinate Fee

DENVER. (AP)—The grand lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, acting on the recommendation of retiring Grand Exalted Ruler David Sholtz that the state of national recovery warrants it, reduced its membership assessment on subordinate lodges.

The grand lodge session accepted Sholtz's recommendation to reduce the per capita member assessment from 35 to 20 cents, which Sholtz revealed would amount to $75,000 annually to the subordinate lodges.

Hollywood SIGHTS and SOUNDS
By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Easiest rut for an actor to fall into is that of perennial officer of the law. Once a policeman always a cop—unless the actor's lucky.
They tell it on Robert Emmett O'Connor, so often seen as the detective, that his big chance to break with the role was nixed by an executive who saw the tests. O'Connor was trying for a priestly part.
"Every time he talked to the condensed man in the cell," the executive said, "I expected him to whip out the handcuffs from under his cassock."
O'Connor doubtless has played other characters, but he's typed in my mind too. Offhand I can't think of a single film in which he hasn't had the bracelets ready. That's how movie-typing works on casting directors.
E. E. Clive, who has contributed bright moments to some 30 films, almost fell into the copper's mold. His first picture, "The Invisible Man," had him in policeman's uniform for the first time in his long stage career, but he was a cop in five films after that. The old judge in "A Tale of Two Cities" started him on a variety of cinematic costumes. Now they "see" him in practically any character role, which is how a real actor should be seen.

APPEARS BEFORE TITLE
The policeman's role in "Dead End" is played by James Burke, but Burke is counting on to step up his career rather than settle it. "I'm in the picture even before it starts," he grins. (You see him strolling down the dead end street before the title flashes on the screen.)
Right up with the law as a typing agency banker the butler role. First screen butler I remember was Sidney Bracey (in that early serial "The Million Dollar Mystery") and he's butted in countless films since, right up to the present. Edgar Norton varies butting with the role of prime minister or foreign diplomat, and is acceptable in a variety of parts, but somehow he still represents the polished essence of screen butting.
Eric Blore's butting debut in "The Gay Divorcee" naturally called for encores, but he's been just as funny in the rare nonsensical roles he has had. He, at least, ought to make the casters think twice.
Mary Boland, screen-typed in comedy after a varied career on the stage, is convinced there is no hope for her to do anything else in pictures. Miss Boland made one dramatic picture, "A Son Comes Home," after long pleading for the opportunity. She's been told the public doesn't want her in drama. It wants to laugh.
But she is bearing up under the sentence. At least she has sold her house she first bought out here and is planning to build another. Says she wouldn't live anywhere else but California.
After watching her do a scene or two, very funny. I couldn't agree with the typing was so bad. If she wants to emote and be sad she ought to take another name for the occasion—and save Mary Boland for the comedy roles. Then the laugh-hunting fans would never be disappointed.

MISS DAVIES IN COMEDY HERE

One of the best things that can happen to a motion picture player, in the opinion of Robert Montgomery, is an occasional "loan out" to a studio other than the one to which he is under contract. He has just completed his "loan out" to Warner Bros., where he appeared in "Ever Since Eve," opposite Marion Davies and a superlative cast of supporting players including Patsy Kelly, Frank McHugh, Louise Fazenda and Allen Jenkins, now showing at the Broadway.

Montgomery is a novelist who is crazy about blondes, but is forced to accept the seeming brunette forced upon him by his hard-boiled woman publisher, who wants him to keep his mind on his work. He is therefore strictly business with Marion there, until by chance he meets her socially one evening, when she is not disguised. A trite plot, with Marion handling the blonde and brunette assignment, but one which provides unlimited scope for this great comedy artist and no end of amusing situations, complications and unlimited laughs.

A companion feature is provided by "Armored Car," featuring Robert Wilcox, Judith Allen, Caesar Romero and Irving Pichel. It is a story of thrills, action and romance built around the armored car messengers on their rounds of bank and payroll collections and deliveries, and provides a tempo of fast-paced action and suspense. An added feature is the latest issue of the March of Time, including candid camera studies of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. World news events and a cartoon complete the program.

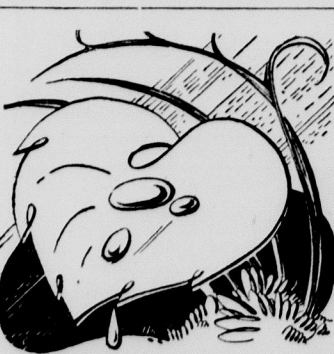

REDEMPTION IS FILM THEME

The story of a man's disgrace, and his redemption at the hands of a woman who loves him, are painted in "The Man Who Found Himself," which closes tonight at the State theater. "The Crime Nobody Saw" is the other feature. "The Man Who Found Himself" is unfolded against a series of modern backgrounds, including a magnificent airplane hospital. The story sees disaster come into the life of a young surgeon, to leave under the influence of a sympathetic nurse. John Beal and Jean Fontaine play the leads.

'ELEPHANT BOY' ON SCREEN

Rudyard Kipling's "Toomai of the Elephants" comes to Walker's theater screen tonight as "Elephant Boy," a gripping jungle story. On the same bill is "Fifty Roads to Town," romantic Twentieth-Century Fox film starring Don Ameche and Ann Sothern. Rounding out the bill is an Our Gang comedy.

QUEEN WHO NEVER SAW HER COUNTRY...

The daughter of the king and queen of Norway, Margaret was born in Norway in 1283. Her mother, a daughter of Alexander III of Scotland, died soon after Margaret's birth and in 1284 it was decided that the crown of Scotland would fall to Margaret if the Scottish king died childless.

Two years later Alexander was killed in a fall from his horse and Margaret became queen. At the age of seven she sailed for Scotland to claim her throne but died en route in September of 1290.

MUSICAL REBEL
Son of a barber-surgeon who held both music and musicians in hearty contempt, 6-year-old George Frederick Handel was forced to give secret expression to the music in his soul that had to out. The boy managed to have a clavichord smuggled into the attic of his home in Halle, Saxony. There, when the rest of the family slept, he softly played to his heart's content.

Discovered at this by his father one night, he was forced to discontinue his secret practice. A while later, visiting the court of Saxe-Weissenfels with his father, the boy sat down at the church organ and played with such beauty that the duke, who accidentally heard the performance, prevailed on the musician's father to allow him to study music. Handel became one of the world's greatest composers.

"The Girl with Sand in Her Shoe" — Drawn Especially for This Magazine by the Noted American Artist, R. Van Buren

He Shaves With An Axe And Says It Beats Razor!

CAVEMEN didn't bother to shave or trim their heavy beards, moderns use sharp razors, but this ex-soldier removes his whiskers with an axe! A Veteran of several wars, William Elmlund of Eatonville, Washington, is also an experienced woodsman who has spent many years in the forests of the Northwest, which accounts for his odd preference in a shaving implement.

"The advantage of using an axe," he explains, "is that it's easy to sharpen. You don't wear out a lot of blades, and you don't need any special equipment—just a piece of broken glass as a mirror, and a keen edge to the axe." He then works up a good lather in an old shaving mug and shaves as he would with a straight razor, with long, swift strokes, until his face is smooth. And not only does he accomplish the job quickly, but gets around his chin with amazing skill.

Mr. Elmlund has never cut himself, and when he occasionally visits a barber he is told that his skin is none the worse for having been "worked on" by an axe.

The earliest modern safety razor is said to have been made by Michael Hunter, of Sheffield, England, in the year 1875. It was merely an ordinary razor with a guard, yet a distinct improvement upon the more primitive razors which were known at a remote period—crude implements which were used by the ancient Egyptians, Greeks and Romans, and referred to in the Book of Numbers. And from recent discoveries by archeologists in Assyria, it is believed that men of that day used sharp-edged stones and shells for shaving.

But, according to Mr. Elmlund, axes were used many thousands of years before the first crude razors—and were the earliest tools used by man, although not for shaving! "I have seen axes in museums fashioned of black sandstone by the lake dwellers of Europe, and a rare axe made of jade which comes from Asia. But my own is made of forged steel—with a keen edge equal to any razor I've ever seen."

Honor Unknown Girl

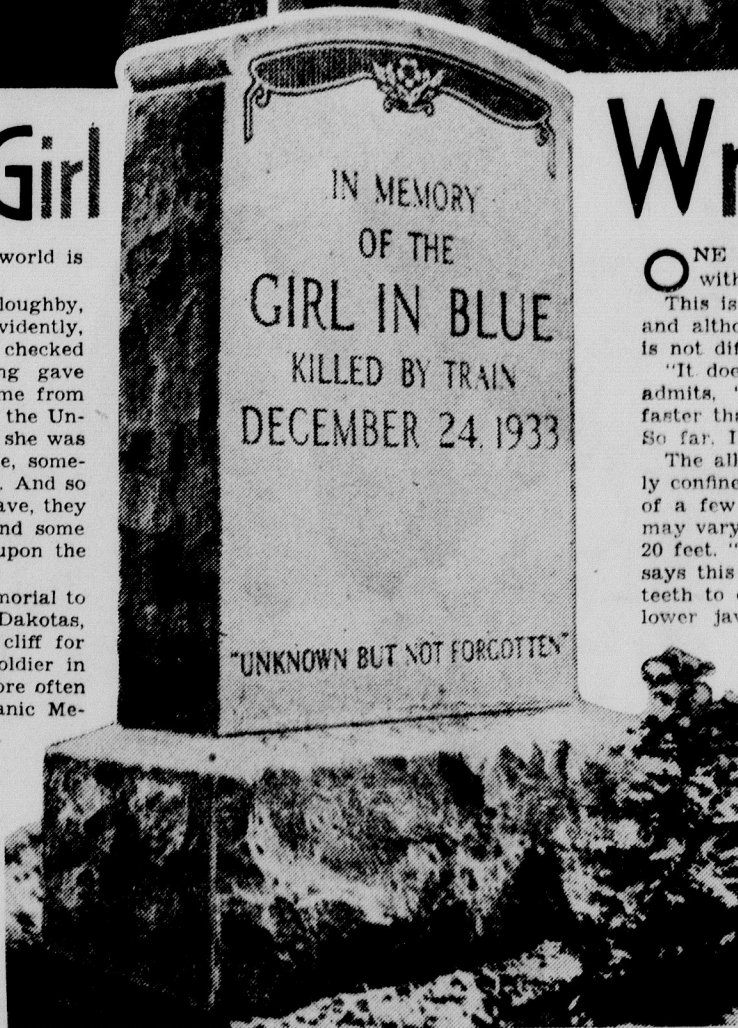

PERHAPS the only memorial of its kind in the world is this Tomb of the Unknown Girl!

When a young girl was accidentally killed near Willoughby, Ohio, no one was able to identify her. She was, evidently, a stranger in that section of the country. The police checked every possible clue, but her handbag and clothing gave no indication of who she was or where she had come from—her name was as much a mystery as was that of the Unknown Soldier. Only two facts seemed to stand out: she was dressed in a blue frock and had blue eyes. Someone, somewhere, the villagers knew, loved her and missed her. And so rather than permit her to be buried in a pauper's grave, they erected a large gravestone to the "Girl in Blue," and some passing stranger occasionally places wild flowers upon the tomb.

Other monuments will endure longer, like the memorial to the nation's heroes carved in the Black Hills of the Dakotas, which are expected to remain visible in the rock cliff for over 500,000 years. The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery has probably been decorated more often than any monument in modern times, and the Titanic Memorial in Washington, D. C., was paid for by thousands of women in memory of children who died when the liner went down.

For thousands of years the remarkable rock-tombs of ancient Egypt have fascinated archeologists, and the ornate facades of Persian tombs are among the world's architectural wonders. Before Biblical times mighty pyramids were sepulchers of Egyptian monarchs and Greek colonies erected beautiful tombs of marble pillars.

Yet while the donors of the tomb to the "Girl in Blue" live, this humble gravestone will be cared for and protected. And the memory of the unidentified girl will remain in the hearts of the townspeople for years to come.

Wrestles With River Reptile!

ONE of the oddest professions is diving into a river infested with big alligators and bringing them out alive—

This is the way that E. Ross Allen makes an excellent living, and although it may seem dangerous to the onlooker, the work is not difficult to an expert.

"It does require speedy action and perfect timing," Mr. Allen admits, "and a man must be faster than the 'gator—or else! So far, I've had no accidents."

The alligator family is largely confined to the warmer parts of a few American rivers, and may vary in size from 2 to over 20 feet. "The average animals," says this professional, "have 20 teeth to each of the upper and lower jaw. And they multiply fairly rapidly. Eggs are large, and laid on the shore in a hollow of sand, covered over by grass and reeds—then these are left to themselves and the heat of the sun. As many as 60 may be laid in one nest, arranged carefully in separate layers."

When raised for commercial purposes, young alligators are first given a diet of earthworms and minnows. On this they are kept for two months, when mice are occasionally fed to them. As they increase in size, the quantity of food is correspondingly increased. Earthworms are excluded from their menu, and small rodents are alternated with fish, frogs and scraps of beef. Later sparrows and young rats are added.

Mr. Ross has only one rule of safety—he will not swim at night in rivers infested by big caimans.

Fishing-Feathers Cost More Than Gold!

WHILE feathers are not sold by the ton, some of them do come by the ounce and cost more than their weight in gold! Skillful workers in one of the West's rarest industries fashion bits of silk and feathers into artificial "flies" for trout fishermen. Mrs. Mary Jenkins, pictured here at work in a western tackle shop, is typical of the many experts who pattern artificial moths, bugs, beetles, bees, wasps and a hundred other insects—usually of expensive imported feathers!

And for this industry, thousands of American pheasants, ducks, chickens and peacocks are raised the year 'round, in real mass production, for feathers for the trained fly-makers. But the rarest and most valued tufts are imported from Europe, Asia and South Africa.

Both France and Belgium ship great bales of feathers to Western American ports, at 90 cents per ounce—yet this cost seems relatively small when compared to the price paid, for example, for the two slim, lacquer-like shoulder feathers of the jungle cock, the sacred bird of India.

A single pair of those beautiful tufts, weighing no more than one-twentieth of an ounce, will cost an American fly-maker $2.50—which is considerably more than the feathers' weight in fine gold!

Among fishermen there are two schools—the old-time or "wet-fly" anglers, and the newer school of "dry-fly" anglers, who use but one very small fly and permit it to float with the current.

Cotton Tail Likes Rain

By R. Remlow Harris

YOUNG Cotton Tail squeaked in a high shrill voice that rain, not snow, was his weather choice—while Jack Rabbit squealed in a voice down low that he hated rain but loved the snow. Said Cotton Tail to his cousin Jack, "Snow makeum shivers run up my back. The thought of ice gives me a pain—I say there is nothing like nice fresh rain."

Spoke Jack to Cotton, "You're just a dunce—I was nearly drowned in a rain storm once—my skin got soaked. I caught a cough, and the rain nearly tore my whiskers off—Give me the snow, then the world is right. Then I don my boots and my coat of white—"

"Oh! You and your snow!" said Cotton Tail. "It covers the earth with a cold white veil. I hate it! I hate it! I hate it! I say—No one but a fool likes snow anyway."

Now the rabbits thought they were all alone, but they did not see just behind a stone, where Old Man's keen old ears had heard every single squeal and silly word. "Now listen, you stupid hares," said he. "Both the rain and snow have got to be. We need them both to make our weather—but still they do not come together. When it snows, Jack Rabbit—then it's your turn, and you, Cotton Tail, must live and learn that rain isn't meant just for you or me, and that weather will be what it wants to be."

MORAL: So to this day jack rabbits love snow, and many turn white in winter. And cotton tails like rain.

What The Ring On Your Finger Means!

Both Ancient And Modern World, Ever In Search Of Love, Express Superstition And Beautiful Symbolism In Legends And Beliefs

Gypsy Girls Whisper to Donkeys With Long Ears and Ask Them if They Will Be Married Within a Year. A Shake of the Animal's Head Means "Yes"—If He Doesn't Shake His Head—It's Doubtful!

Broth From the Boiled Toad Rubbed on the Fingers of a Girl Will Make the Man of Her Choice Secure — So It Was Believed!

MYSTIC legends and superstitions surrounding weddings, romance, and marriage rings are as old as the world. Through the past few thousand years many odd beliefs from the days of witchcraft and good luck charms have taken new forms — yet are partially based upon historic legends and old tales. Modern youth is accustomed to smile at the credulity of its ancestors, but even today earnest young swains and maidens occasionally visit Gypsy crystal gazers and alleged "fortune tellers" who predict love and good fortune for a piece of silver and half serious and half disbelieving, these gay young people await the fulfillment of the dark-eyed Gypsy's prophecy. No longer do they, like their grandmothers, pluck petals from daisies to the lilting words, "he loves me, he loves me not!" yet modern youth is still fascinated by the myths surrounding tales of famous wedding rings worn by heroes and heroines of the distant past.

And while the origin of today's wedding rings is obscured by time, it is possible that the ancient Egyptians may have invented them—when they first sketched circles as symbols of eternity. For a ring, the Pharaohs believed, was a "heavenly sign that life and happiness and love had no beginning and no ending."

Several rings are said to have altered history, according to both fact and legend. When the Queen of ancient Sheba returned to her people after years of wandering, it was a magnificent ring given to her by King Solomon which appeased their wrath at her long absence. And somewhere, in a safe hiding place in northern Africa, this ring may still be safely guarded. A ring surrounded by legend and romance, yet no more famed than the ring of Cleopatra, who ordered a ring carved from a solid emerald—perhaps at the time the finest jewel in the world.

AND there was a definite connection, the early Greeks taught, between a person's ring finger and the human heart. One vein of the finger was said to run directly to the heart, and the importance of the ring, therefore, was very great. The finger was honored by bands of gold, silver and copper by many races. Celts, Germans, Egyptians and the Romans valued a wide variety of rings for beauty, size and for mystic meanings.

Rings of brass and iron were popular in the reign of King Charles II of England. And during one period young Englishmen in love gave their sweethearts rings cut from the finger of a heavy leather glove; and despite this ring's low monetary value, it was a mark of high esteem. In an amusing incident during a recent London wedding ceremony, the bridegroom found that he had forgotten to bring the handsome ring he had so carefully purchased—and in a moment of inspiration he slipped a curtain ring upon the finger of the astonished bride!

To the ancient Hebrews a ring served a double purpose—it was both a good luck charm and a wedding ring in one. Often a golden ring had a tiny temple engraved upon it, with the ancient words, "Mazzei Tob"—meaning good luck to the wearer. Years later, in the time of

The temple dome replica was always a part of a wedding ring and the gold band bears the words "Mazzei Tob"—meaning "good luck." 3—Top and side views of a Gallo-Roman period wedding ring of the Fifth Century inscribed with names of bride and groom. Found in the Department Sarthe, France.

Shakespeare, young men presented their brides with golden bands on which were inscribed poetic fancies. One of these read, "In thee, my choice, I do rejoice," and another, "If thou deny, then sure I'll die!" Other rings of the same age carried the words, "Heaven helps!" And in ancient Etruria wedding rings were fashioned by artists and craftsmen in the form of a bird or a dove—supposed to bring peace and harmony upon the family of the wearer.

It is thought that the Crusaders began the custom of bringing orange blossoms to weddings, and even today the presence of these sweet blossoms in a church indicates the fulfillment of a romance. One custom of the Crusaders was the placing of a wreath of these fragrant flowers upon the bride's head as a blessing. From Palestine and the European countries orange blossoms were carried to China by a Portuguese vessel in 1547, and Chinese weddings added them to the formal ceremony. Legend says that it was the Olympian god Jupiter who gave Juno, his wife, not a golden apple but an orange on her wedding day. Today wedding rings are sometimes set with either fruit or an orange, a practice which possibly dates from the myths of the Greeks.

Different countries prefer their own interpretation of rings, and in Iceland these are made from ivory or bone—carved out by the groom with considerable artistry. And the size often depends upon the material at hand, for occasionally a ring will turn out to be a bracelet or and the words "God Helps" on the band. 11—The wedding ring of the unfortunate Mary, Queen of the Scots, given her by Henry, Lord Darnley. It was found in the ruins of Falkenberg Castle where the Queen was executed. 12—Iron wedding ring of ancient vintage. Iron was used extensively in some lands because it stood for durability. 13—A Seventh Century ring of Saxony. This was found in a sepulchre at Harnham, England. 14—The ring covered with sacred images, given to Catharina Von Boro by Martin Luther on June 13, 1525. 15—A wedding ring of India is made of iron or silver and is worn on the thumb of the woman. 16—Grecian wedding ring of an early day—a true lover's knot. 17—An early Greek ring, date unknown, with ancient Greek inscribed. an anklet rather than a circle to fit the finger. And in India women wear wedding rings—plain bands of silver or iron—upon their thumbs.

SOME RACES believe in superstitions which go back to unrecorded time. For uncounted generations Gypsy girls have claimed to know the secret of becoming brides within the year! All that is needed, they say, is to find "the longest eared mule near the camp, and to whisper a question into its ear." Then, if the animal shakes its head with vigor, the girl feels sure she will marry soon. If the long ear moves only a little, the outcome remains doubtful, and, according to legend, if the mule makes no sign whatever, the young Gypsy believes she will not marry that year.

Imaginative and credulous young people often play the old-fashioned game of throwing a peeling over their shoulder—one of the oldest "tests" which has come down through generations of superstitions. The ancient rules say: "The inquirer takes an orange or an apple, peels it carefully, making sure that the paring does not break, and throws this over the left shoulder. When it lands, either an initial or a face may be formed!"

Another amusing belief, still popular in some countries, is that when a young lady places three raw beans between her lips and overhears a conversation through a door—the name of the first man mentioned is the one she will marry! However, if it turns out to be

ONE of the oldest customs of all is that of "rice throwing" at weddings. This is said to have originated several centuries ago on the Island of Celebes near Malaysia. Natives believed that the souls of the married couple might "take flight like wild birds through sheer joy," and since all birds of the Celebes liked to stay where rice was plentiful, an ample supply was furnished by the wedding guests.

Today the ancient practice of guests kissing the bride is still popular. For this, history declares there are several reasons. One is that possibly this may be the final opportunity for her former suitors to salute the young lady. The custom began in old England, where wedding guests made sure to kiss the bride before she left the church—a pleasant proceeding though to bring the fortunate friends good luck!

Among the strangest superstitions was that surrounding the supposedly "magic" powers of the common toad. In a phase of ancient witchcraft—which descended from primitive nature-worship—medieval necromancers taught that if a toad was "well boiled for several hours, the resulting broth might be rubbed upon a woman's fingertips, and the man of her choice would soon become defenseless against her; he would fall in love and care for her ever after."

FROM the earliest period of civilized relationships the finger ring was considered the most convenient means for carrying the signet of its wearer. In later Greek legends the ancient heroes are described as wearing rings, and every freeman throughout Greece seems to have possessed one. The early Lacedaemonians wore rings of iron. Romans were said to have derived the use of rings from their enemies, the Sabines; and their rings were in the beginning, as those of the cultured Greeks, signet-rings—and every free Roman had the legal right to wear one. Ambassadors, in the early age of the Roman Republic, wore golden rings as a part of their official dress—a custom later extended to senators.

Historians believe that wedding rings were worn by the Hebrews several centuries prior to Christian times—beautiful rings wrought in gold filigree, and richly enameled by skilled jewelers. In the pagan days of Europe, rings appear to have been associated with fidelity and romance—a gimmel, or linked ring composed of three parts with a clasped-hand ornamentation, was used as a betrothal ring.

In the days of the Republic of Venice, the ring was a symbol of the dominion of Venice over the Adriatic Sea, and annually a ring was thrown by the ruling Doge from a vessel into the sea, indicating that as the wife was subject to her husband, so was the Adriatic Sea to the powerful city of Venice!

And even today some people seem to have the faculty of holding the ring of another person in their hands, and supposedly relating the owner's past and foretelling his future—which is a practice known as psychometry, discovered many years ago by a Dr. J. R. Buchanan, who classed it among the sciences—yet a form of "fortune telling" that continues to puzzle investigators.

Sea Or Screen—It's All The Same To Him!

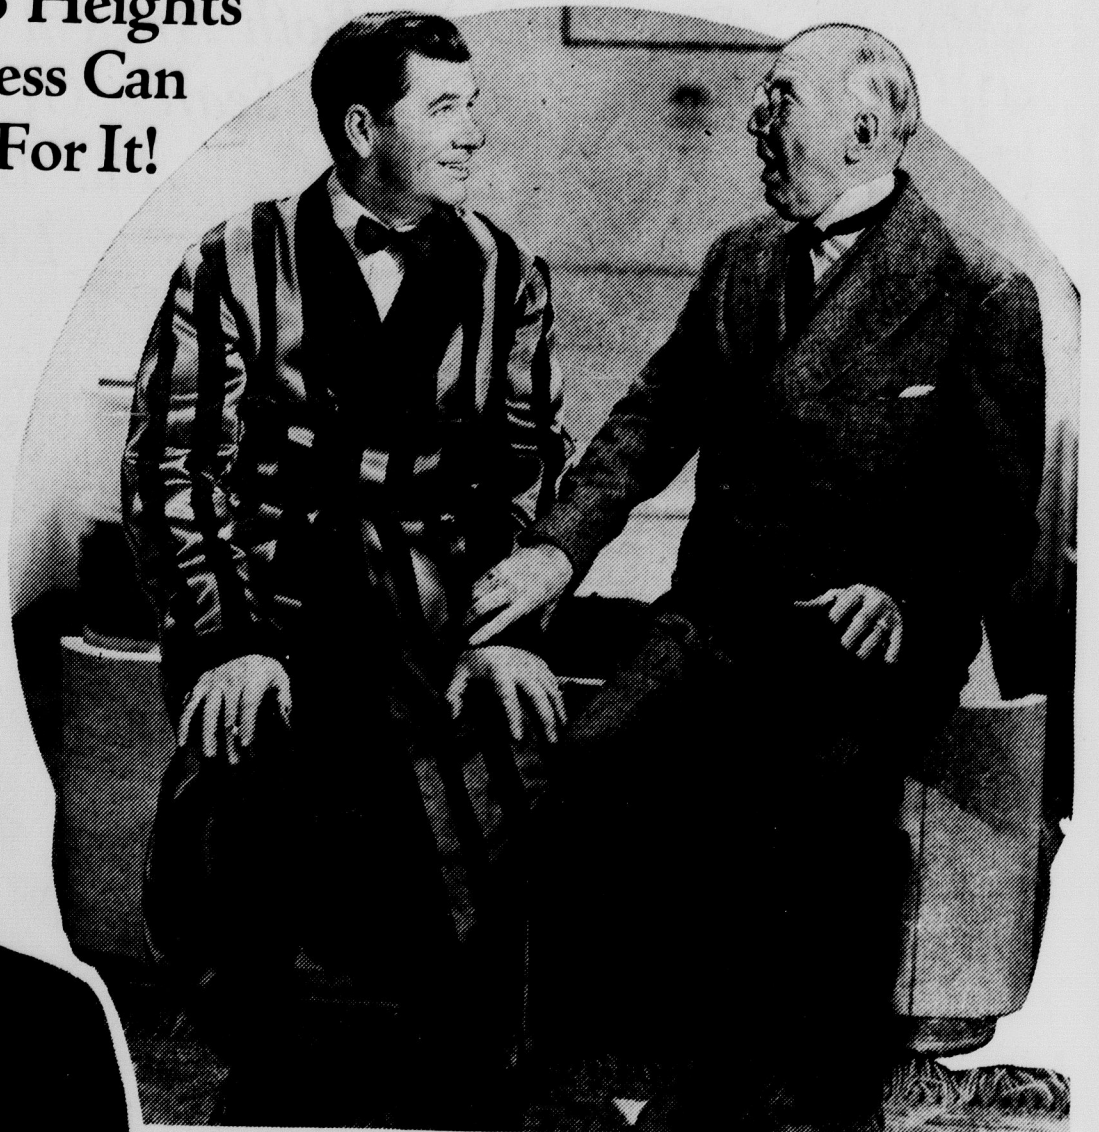

George Bancroft Rose From Ranks To Heights Of Stardom And Says That Happiness Can Be Found Anywhere—If You Look For It!

Evelyn Venable Appears With Bancroft in His Latest Picture.

George Bancroft Has Had His Downs and Ups—Now He's Up and He "Doesn't Feel Any Different."

HOW DOES IT FEEL to be a star—to scale the dizzy cinema heights, then turn, relax, and be able to gaze down upon countless admiring millions who would give almost anything to trade places with you?

Dolores Del Rio, for instance, might give one answer. She, like Fay Wray, Francis Lederer, Jean Parker and numerous others, sped into stardom. Their ascent was sudden, swift, dramatic, but talk with one for whom the climb was long and painful, with many a heart-breaking reverse, and one is likely to hear something quite different. Consider George Bancroft. This perennial favorite fought his way up through five branches of the show business. Successively he was a vaudeville entertainer, dramatic actor, musical comedy singer, silent movie star, and—just when the so-called "wise ones" were getting ready to bury him professionally—Bancroft's fame hit a new high in talking pictures.

He, if anyone, should know all the sensations of Hollywood's heights, and George is of a sufficiently philosophical turn of mind to explain his feelings. Bancroft was in the navy for five years, but whether a person is a sailor or screen star, he says the feeling toward life is the same. Happiness and contentment, he asserts, is not a question of geography or wealth, but a state of mind which takes good luck with the bad, makes the best of it and finds something out of every day's living that is fine and worthwhile.

His favorite conversational topic is luck, and the starring role it played in his career and that of others.

"Look at Dick Arlen," he will say, and tell how Dick might still be driving a delivery truck in Hollywood were it not for his locking fenders with a studio car. Following this mishap Arlen was offered a motion picture job.

Nothing but good fortune can be thanked, he thinks, for certain breaks which are the making of a career. Bancroft thinks his character-habit of bending a half dollar contributed hugely to the success of his role in "Underworld." He thinks George Raft was blessed beyond words when a coin-juggling "piece of business" was written into his part in "Scarface." Without it Raft might have remained undiscovered.

The important thing about luck, Bancroft believes, is being able to meet it half way.

"Too many young actors, like people in other occupations, sit down and moon about 'not getting the breaks.' The truth is, if a choice piece of luck came along they wouldn't know what to do with it. The best way to find luck is to strive to make it for yourself."

Bancroft was born in Philadelphia on a September 30 just before the turn of the present century. His father was a policeman. Thanks to a character actress who lived next door, he made his theatrical debut as a mere infant when she carried him on the stage of a Quaker City stock company.

He was only 12 years old when a school chum talked him into joining the navy. The two were to enlist together, but, at the last minute, the other youth backed out. George, however, went ahead, and his strong, healthy body enabled him to pass for a young man of 18. "I never regretted the step," he continued. "My 'hitch' lasted five years, but it had barely begun when I had my first dream of some day being a big theatrical star. There were no movies to speak of, so in those days youngsters got stage-struck."

"I had a fair singing voice, and when the boys in the fleet found it out they asked me to appear in a minstrel show. Other entertainments followed, and before long I began to look forward to seeing my picture, like those of Lillian Russell, Nat Goodwin and other stars, on the back of cigarette coupons."

Leaving the navy, Bancroft went into vaudeville. By now he had learned to play the banjo, and, always a good Negro dialectician, he did a "single" in which he imitated Bert Williams. Within two years he was headlining the Keith and Orpheum circuits. It looked as though he had "arrived."

Still this wasn't stardom as he had visualized it. Vaudeville artists were held in contempt by good society and Bancroft thought his talents were bigger than song-and-dance caliber. He stopped buying burnt cork, thereafter purchased only actors' makeup, and during the next few years played in "Paid in Full," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," and other dramas of that day. Capitalizing on his rich baritone voice, he sang and acted in such musical comedies as "Papa's Boy," "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly" and "Cinders."

Often a featured player, but never a star. That summarized Bancroft's success at this date. "Like other supporting actors," he says, "I was painfully conscious of not being 'as good as' the stars, because they got top billing, all the publicity, the best dressing rooms and train accommodations, and everything else that went with their exalted positions."

Bancroft's first picture role gave him a glimpse of something he had never seen in the theater, and causes him to say "I don't know," when people ask him how it feels to be a star. Chosen to play the heavy in a Tom Mix western, he went with the cast and crew to make location shots on a Saugus ranch.

"We lived there for ten days. Everyone ate at the same big table. We all shared the same amusements in the evening. The humblest electrician slept in a bed that was just as good as the one Tom used. No social lines were drawn; we worked and lived on the same level."

"This amazed me! Then I came to understand why it was all possible, even logical. Making a motion picture is a technical feat in itself. I remember the trouble I used to have when I took simple snapshots with a little camera. Well, imagine what a job it is to photograph and record a whole production, with the figures moving, passing through varied scenes, and the whole crew fighting a fresh assortment of problems every day!"

"Consequently, I found out that early in the history of this art, everyone seemed to realize that good pictures were possible only when there was the fullest co-operation all around. A spirit of comradeship developed which extended from star to script girl."

Quite before he knew it Bancroft was breaking box-office records in "Underworld," "The Dragnet," "The Docks of New York" and other silent successes, and, having arrived, found he was not getting the thrill out of his stellar status that he expected!

"Nothing was different," he explained. "As a featured player I had a good dressing room, a valet to assist me with my wardrobe, and all the other conveniences an actor could ask. True, I was now making more money, and publicity came by the page, instead of the paragraph, but none of the essentials had changed. I went right on working, glad to be a part of the complex mechanism that makes the nation's entertainment."

Then came talking pictures. They sounded the doom of many silent screen careers. Bancroft possessed a splendid speaking voice. Nevertheless, his position subtly altered, amidst the confusion of making the first talkies and the reactions of those novelty-seekers who were going to the theater for the first time in years. Bancroft did not steady his career by picking that very time to take a long rest. Inevitably, they said he was through.

No such notion can exist now, for the screen's first he-man made an electric return in "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," and, as a Columbia star, has since been top-spotted in "Hell-Ship Morgan" and "Racketeers in Exile." The last-named reunites him with Wynne Gibson for the first time since they made their memorable "Lady and Gent," and Evelyn Venable appears with them.

Great Mine Fire May Last 1000 Years!

Flames Have Roared For Over Half A Century And Despite Heroic Efforts Are Still Spreading

MINERS and operators of the West's gold and silver mines are watching with intense interest the ceaseless efforts of state and Federal engineers to bring under control one of the most destructive fires the world has ever known which has burned steadily in the caverns of Ohio's coal deposits. For although every safety measure is taken to prevent fires in western mines, records which include even recent years show how valuable properties have been ruined by disastrous flames and by flooding operations whereby these were slowly extinguished.

Other mine fires have occasionally burned for months and years, but none have roared deep underground for 53 years as has the creeping inferno which moves relentlessly through southern Perry County's once unmatched coal lands, and today occupies more than seven square miles between the little coal mining towns of Shawnee and Newstraitsville.

This roaring fire dragon, burning continuously and furiously since 1884, has eaten more than $50,000,000 worth of high-grade coal and now threatens the great Hocking coal fields with their billion dollar treasure of unmined fuel.

Turning fireman in a big way, Uncle Sam is using steam and electric shovels, dynamite and the hard-swinging picks of WPA workers to tame the "inferno," as Perry County miners call the subterranean conflagration that has been making a charred and desolate waste of the landscape, filling the air for miles with fumes, smoke and soot and defying all previous efforts to subdue it.

The state has joined the Federal Government in this ambitious $365,000 battle to check the ravages of this destroyer and choke off what is declared to be the world's greatest fire of its kind.

Only now, after weeks of strenuous labor by some 300 men and many powerful machines, it is announced that the tide of battle is turning and that the ferocious fire demon soon may be "licked." But the fight is not yet won.

The strategy of the battle is to "cage the dragon"—to isolate the blaze and its immediate fuel, and to let it burn itself out. Like the pioneers who plowed furrows in the path of a prairie fire, the coal fire battlers are digging up the veins of coal that the mine flames in their natural course would follow.

Plans of government engineers call for the erection of three barriers to hem the fire demon in effectually. By thus confining the conflagration to this relatively small area, engineers believe it will be possible to save the rest of the extensive Hocking Valley deposits, from which the nation receives a tenth of its coal supply.

Two types of barriers are being built. Where the coal is reasonably close to the surface, the program calls for digging it out with steam shovels in the usual strip-mining fashion. After the soil is removed, the coal is to be taken out in a deep, wide "cut," which is then filled with wet mud.

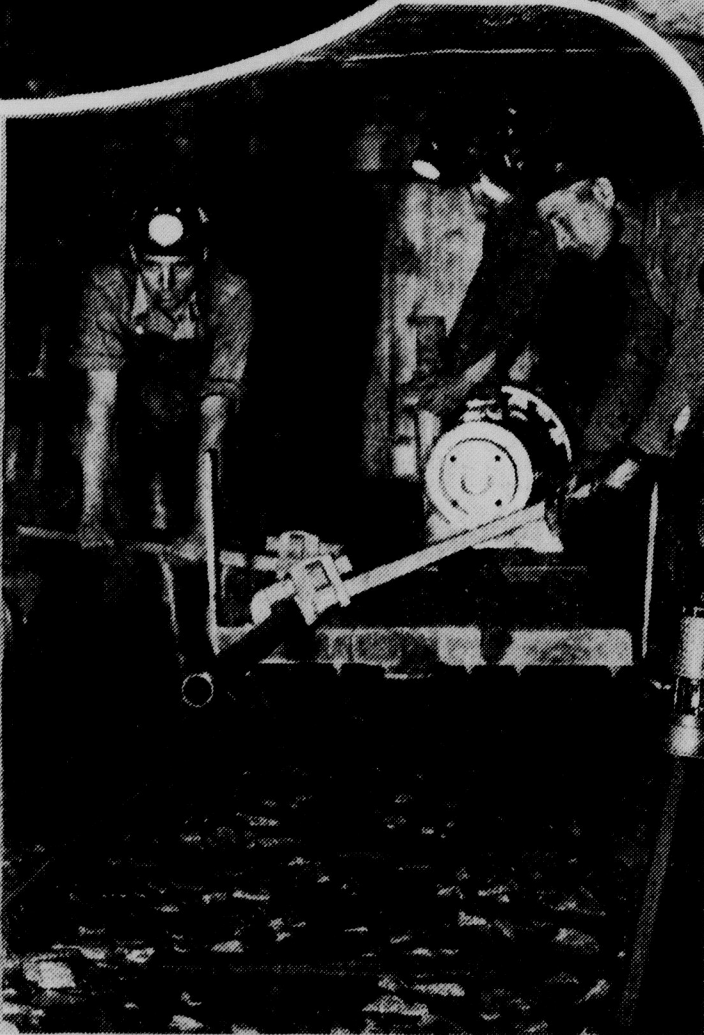

The other type of barrier is a tunnel driven straight through the coal seam. All the coal in the tunnel's path is taken out, of course, to prevent any possibility of the fire jumping across the tunnel. Plans call for the sinking of holes to it from the surface. Then a stream of mud is to be pumped down through the holes to fill the tunnel.

When entirely isolated the fire may take 1000 years to burn itself out. James Berry, superintendent of the Ohio Bureau of Mines, believes, Berry, who assisted engineers of the United States Bureau of Mines in drafting plans to isolate the fire, estimated it would take a year and a half to "cork up" the three "bottlenecks" of the burning area.

If this is done effectively, the fire's course will be halted. Otherwise it is conceivable that the flames will sweep on until eventually they reach almost to the Ohio River, nearly 150 miles south of Newstraitsville.

Gargantuan trenches and tunnels sixteen feet wide and from eight to thirty or more feet deep are being dug out in this strange but highly scientific campaign to head off a seeming unconquerable force of devastation.

One of the serious problems of the fire fighters is the influx of visitors. Motorists are coming long distances to inspect this charred and barren no man's land, to watch the flames roar and the vapors spurt hissing from glowing crater-like holes and to see the miners go gingerly about their dangerous work.

David Rush and Willard Andrews still live, with their families, in two homes on Plummer Hill, almost within a stone's throw of the blazing area. They say they are used to the fire and do not believe there is any danger, but officials predict they will have to move out soon.

Supposedly started in the great coal strike of 1884 by miners, this 53-year-old fire has been spreading over what coal men regard as the very heart of the great Hocking coal fields, one of the richest deposits in the world. Many acres of woods and farm lands have been ruined, homes hurriedly abandoned, paved highways have caved in, and a church and a large school house have been imperiled.

NO one ever knows when or where the fire will break through. One day last summer a dweller in this area discovered that his sole source of water suddenly and unaccountably had gone dry. Even as he investigated, the cistern began to emit smoke. Then the terra cotta casing which projected from it began to crack. He decided it was time for him to get away from there. With the help of neighbors, he moved the house and shortly afterwards the cistern became a roaring chimney.

Driving his horses home from pasture, a farmer saw his prize mare stumble and sink almost head first into a fiery chasm. He was helpless and turned his head to keep from seeing the animal roasted alive.

About a year ago, pupils of Newstraitsville's $80,000 high school complained of the heat, even though the furnace was out. This led to the discovery that the underground fire was within 25 feet of the structure. An emergency crew dug through the basement and around the foundation, removed the smoldering coal, and saved the building.

One of the strangest things about the "Newstraitsville fire," as it has been known since it first started, is that none of the men who allegedly caused this wanton destruction ever were arrested.

Mine owners offered tempting rewards to learn the names of the guilty persons. Detectives worked on the case for years. Yet nearly everyone in this region conceded that it would be impossible to obtain a jury that would convict.

By Mary Daugherty

When A Woman Puts A Man's Love To The Test—Sometimes Result Is Surprising Complications!

"Till five then, Saint."

Nancy put down the French phone and reached for her desk pad. Funny, methodical Nancy, as though she could forget it. But there was a soft little smile on her lips. Lucky she had her private office.

"Tea, Saint, Van Buren Hotel, 5 P. M."

She almost added "engagement ring." Of course that was what he wanted. Saint was so conventional, and after his proposal last night—Nancy smiled again at that memory. She would have expected him to choose someone's garden, or at least Carl Schurz Park very late at night, with the red and green lights on the river. As a matter of fact, she had not really expected Saint to propose at all.

Most would-be bachelors of thirty are only young men who are not married yet. St. Lawrence Vail, though, was convincing in the role. But imagine, Nancy's thoughts ran on as she drew innumerable cartwheels on the blank copy sheet headed "Susskind's Sweetheart Chocolates"—imagine his popping the conventional question in Junius's, of all possible night clubs.

"Tomorrow?" he had added on Nancy's enthusiastic acceptance.

"Oh, I couldn't possibly, Saint. Not before three weeks, anyway. I have that candy account, and the Italian Hotels account, both national, and several local ones, and I'll have to do loads of copy on all of them before I can go away."

Even in her new, warm happiness she had noted Saint's strange depression.

"Of course if you say so, sweet, but I don't like engagements."

Nancy adored engagements.

She dreamed through the rest of the afternoon—Saint was so sophisticated and charming, and awfully simple really, especially considering how prosperous he was, and so sweet about her work, and so handsome on a horse and—At a quarter of five she tossed into the wastebasket six pages of cartwheels, brightened her red lips, pulled the little red hat over her dark curls, and grinned at her sparkling, brown-eyed reflection.

"A blind man could see that you're in love, idiot."

Saint, his coat and hat checked, was waiting in the Van Buren lobby. He was one of those big, blond youths, not really good-looking at all, whose crinkling, blue-eyed smiles are so sympathetic that no girl knows—or cares—whether they're good-looking or not.

Nancy noticed at once that he was curiously subdued.

"Oh, are we staying here? I supposed you meant cocktails."

"No, I said tea."

A bad case of cold feet, Nancy diagnosed, selecting Scotch scones and Oolong.

She waited breathlessly for the ring. She didn't really care for anything so conventional as a diamond solitaire, herself, but she knew Saint would believe in that sort of thing.

And then it slowly dawned on her that this small talk was not for the waiter, but for her; that they were dancing not to warm his cold feet, so to speak, but to prevent her referring to the previous evening.

Nancy was deeply hurt.

In the middle of a dance she glanced at her watch—Nancy, who never cared what time it was when she was with Saint.

"Oh, I'll have to hurry. I'm expecting Judith Brooke for dinner."

He put her in his roadster, still chatting desperately about golf and the market.

Nancy felt like a volcano about to erupt—like a glacier about to melts—like a very proud, hurt little girl about to burst into tears.

"Let me get home first, please let me get home first," she said to herself over and over, studying the traffic lights.

"Don't get out," she burst forth at her apartment house door.

"Wait, I have something for you." He drew a large box from the car pocket—much too large for a ring. He gave her the box, pressed hard one small, brown hand.

"My love to Judith. Three weeks, sweetheart."

A sheepish smile, and he was gone.

Inside, Nancy tossed a light greeting to the maid and dashed to her bedroom. Her fingers fumbled so at the ribbon she could hardly open the package.

At length she tore away the paper and disclosed—a box of Susskind's Sweetheart Chocolates! Her own account.

"And they say advertising doesn't pay."

IT WAS a depressed and worried little copywriter who opened the door to Judith Brooke. Judith, schoolgirl friend of both their mothers, had introduced Saint to Nancy. She was very smart, an incredible forty-five with a girl's zest for life.

"Oh, I had tea with St. Lawrence Vail. He sent his love," Nancy said over the coffee cups, as she produced the chocolates.

"Sweetheart chocolates from Saint? How daring of him. Heavens, he must have proposed at last."

"How did you know? But don't tell anyone."

"Oh, Saint had a bad shock five years ago, when he was twenty-five. Don't you remember? The tabloids were full of it."

Judith paused to remember Nancy five years ago—a gallant, curly-headed little David, arriving at nineteen to take on the Goliath of the metropolis.

"I don't read the tabloids."

"Well, I do, and so did Saint in those days, I guess. It was really awfully amusing. 'Young St. Lawrence badly burned,' they said. 'Chorine sues St. Lawrence Vail for breach of promise. Millionaire clubman's letter read to court.'—Saint never meant to marry the girl, of course, but he wrote her a very romantic letter, and a romantic jury gave her fifty thousand. Poor Saint! He's been telling me for years that he'd never marry, but just lately he's changed it. Says he'll never get engaged. He wanted to marry you right away, didn't he?"

"But how could I, Judith?"

"I know, darling—"

The maid, black and benevolent, brought Nancy a box of flowers. They were roses, long-stemmed, deep red ones. Nancy searched in vain for a card.

Judith chuckled.

"St. Lawrence, once burned, refuses to turn other side! He told me once he would never give another girl grounds for breach of promise. Tell me, did he ever write you a letter?"

Nancy thought, and flushed.

"No, he always wires, and very formal telegrams at that. I supposed it was because he's so conventional, and I've always signed mine 'love and kisses' just to tease him. Oh, I could die of shame."

"Don't be silly, child. He loves you terribly, or he would never have dared propose. I suppose he meant to sweep you off your feet and marry you at once. The poor boy."

Nancy was still blushing.

"Of course he doesn't love me, or he'd trust me more than that. I won't ever marry him."

"Of course you will, little idiot."

"I won't. Well, anyway, I won't marry him unless he gives me grounds for a breach of promise suit."

And that was the only concession that Judith Brooke could get from her.

THE next day Nancy was still angry and very hurt. And, just as a great actress draws on her private grief to improve a new role, and a great singer always sings better when her heart is broken, Nancy, who was really a good copywriter, brought her secret sorrow to the office.

They ran a new ad the next day, though it took all Nancy's influence and ability and young charm to put it over.

For the new ad carried a stern drawing of a scene in a court room, and the copy read, with appropriate sketches:

To Mr. Susskind's relief, it did not prove such bad psychology. For penniless youths were glad to insinuate that their ladies were dangerous, and older men found it amusing to send the box to ladies who really were dangerous.

Nancy Was Enjoying the Sea and Sun and Sand When a Book Was Hurlled at Her from Behind a Rock.

ous. And sales mounted persistently.

But St. Lawrence Vail gulped the ad with his morning coffee, guessed that his kitten was showing her claws, and sheepishly departed for a golf tournament in North Carolina.

Every night Nancy's rage mounted at the receipt of a large box of red roses—no card enclosed—and a telegram:

Miss Nancy Chatham 17 East Ninth Street New York City They are putting on a great tournament down here stop Wish you were here stop Marvin played three holes under par today stop Wonderful weather stop Be a good girl and don't work too hard Nancy stop St. Lawrence Vail

Nancy tossed that one to Judith Brooke the night that two of the three weeks had expired. Judith laughed as she read it.

"The only thing I can see, Nancy, is for you to go to some island where there's no florist or telegraph service. You might take my cottage off the coast of Maine. Why don't you? The boat goes over tomorrow. Then we'll see what Saint can do."

Judith Brooke, deu ex machina.

Judith did not tell Nancy, who had secretly forewarned the sex, that Owen Brooke, her favorite nephew, was presumably studying for the bar exam in the adjoining cottage on her island.

If there were a world's record for getting engaged, Judith had no doubt that Owen would be the titleholder. He was the typical college boy, always engaged, although Judith suspected that he had never seriously considered the convention of marriage, except perhaps when he was cramming for a sociology quiz.

NANCY landed on the little island at high tide late the next evening.

Early in the morning she ran out, surveyed the enchanting gray and blue cottage in the sunlight, approved of it, and then raced to the beach and laid in the sun. A large moss-covered rock broke the wind from the east.

She lay there a long time, revelling, you might say, in her broken heart. Stray quotations drifted across her consciousness, and she murmured them in melancholy delight.

"He will not come, she said. She wept I am away, away, O God, that I were dead."

And: "Strew on her roses, roses, And never a spray of yew, In silence she reposes, O would that I did too."

"I repose in silence all right," Nancy thought, "in fact you might say I'm incommunicado."

And, for she was young and in love, the universal panacea of sea and sun and sand, with the warm fragrance of bayberry, had already begun its healing process when—

"Ouch darn!" cried Nancy.

She picked up the calfskin tome that had come hurtling onto her thigh from behind the rock. Blackstone's Commentaries! A tousled, brown head appeared over the rock, and under it such a surprised, rueful boy's face that Nancy giggled. The boy grinned an engaging grin.

"I am sorry. But say, what a commentary on Blackstone's taste! And I was going to throw the old boy to the fish. My name's Owen Brooke, by the way, and what are you doing on my Aunt Judith's island?"

"Oh, she lent me her cottage, to get away from it all. I'm Nancy Chatham."

"Judith's a swell girl. The family drops me on this island so I won't be distracted from my books, and she lends you her cottage."

Nancy smiled. He seemed very young after Saint.

"I'm sure she knew I wouldn't distract you."

"Oh, off the sex!" Owen said sagely. His wide experience had made him feel precocious in the ways of women. "Well, so am I off yours. In fact, the boat that brought you over brought me a letter ending it all, and my pin back again. Let's drown our sorrows together."

With a swift run and dive he was in the water. Nancy dove after him. It was pleasant to have someone to swim with.

So pleasant, in fact, that the days passed and they spent them together. The season was late and there were few vacationers on the island. The lighthouse keeper and his wife, who served as cook for them, were the only permanent residents.

On the mainland, telegraph wires and telephones buzzed, newspapers were printed and hawked and thrown hurriedly away to make room for the next edition; letters were written, and in New York they were delivered as often as six times a day, but the island's sole contact with all that metropolitan madness was the launch that brought provisions and stale papers once a week, and that would come for Nancy only when her week was over.

By the second day, Owen was making love to Nancy in the light collegiate way that she could not quite object to.

"You're a swell egg, Nancy, a great old horse. Ready, mosquito?" all murmured with a soft voice and a look of abject devotion.

On the third day he said, "Say

Nancy, how about being engaged to a guy? Come on, wear my pin."

"Why thank you, Owen, but I shall never marry."

A faint surprise shadowed his bright eyes. Lord, who said marry?

"Oh, that's all right. A fellow likes to park his pin somewhere. Come on, be a good egg."

"Well—oh, all right."

What difference does it make, she thought, what difference does anything make, remembering suddenly Saint's crinkling blue eyes and his slow, hesitant "I adore you."

Anyway Owen wasn't afraid every girl he met was going to get him for breach of promise.

The next evening the lighthouse keeper blew in on them in wild excitement. Fifteen years he'd been operating the radio station at the tower, and never a message had come for him that wasn't an SOS. And here, from an official marine station, was a message to a girl on his island. He had decoded it painfully and scribbled it out on brown wrapping paper. Nancy caught the contagion of his excitement, but it faded quickly as he read the message.

Miss Nancy Chatham care of Judith Lighthouse Brooke Island Tournament over Marvin won stop Wonderful weather stop Arrived New York today stop When are you coming back impatient to see you stop St. Lawrence Vail

"What answer, Miss?" the lighthouse man asked, hoping he would be able to send the answer more quickly than he had decoded the message itself.

"No answer," Nancy said sweetly.

That was just like Saint. He would use all his influence and connections to send a silly message like that, which said precisely nothing. "Impatient to see you."

Owen caught the temper that underlay her sweetness.

"Must be important—a message to the lighthouse station," he hazarded as a feeler after the man had gone to radio over and over to a surprised operator "No answer no answer no answer."

"Who is the ardent man?"

"It's nothing," said Nancy. "Just a message about a golf tournament from a man I used to know."

Used to know!

JUDITH arrived the next day in a special launch she had hired to bring her over.

"Oh, by the way, Nancy," she said innocently, having already noticed the pearl-set pin on her sweater, "Saint is back in town. He rather expects you to return tomorrow—says the three weeks are up. I told him not to count on it. Wait, he sent you a present."

It was another large package. Nancy took off the paper in quivering interest, but when she saw the familiar box, Susskind's Sweetheart Chocolates, she didn't even open it. Judith smiled as she threw it on the table.

Owen came in a little later, volubly grateful to Judith for sending Nancy to brighten his exile.

"She's a great-old turnip, Judith, and we're engaged. . . . Oh, chocolates! Judith, you'll spoil the boy yet."

He pounced on the box and opened it.

"Hey, what sort of trick is this?" and he dropped the lid in disgust.

Judith smiled.

Nancy crossed to the box with sudden interest. All the chocolates had been removed. There was a little gray velvet jeweler's box in the large one.

She opened it quickly, and took out a slim bracelet of sapphires and blue-white diamonds. As she slipped in on she read the card, "Saint Lawrence Vail" and in his sweet scrawl, "To my wife."

Eyes bright, while they both watched her, she stopped to consider. Did she—or didn't she—have grounds for breach of promise?

"Turn it over, darling," Judith said.

Nancy did.

"I guess maybe I will go back tomorrow. . . . Sorry, Owen, but you'll have to find another hangar for parking your pin."

Nancy was again looking at the other side of the card where Saint had scrawled, "Exhibit A—one diamond bracelet."

Accessories Complete Costume Ensemble

Matching Materials
And Color Schemes
Achieve Harmony

By Dorothy Blair

FROM the crown of your hat (or perhaps I should say lack of crown, hats being what they are this summer) to the soles of your frivolous sandals, fashion decrees that for smartness and chic there must be subtly contrasting harmony. Never before have the accessories to the costume played so important a part in the general ensemble. Each frock should be complemented by hat, shoes, gloves, belt (if it is required) handbag and scarf, and these should be selected with care so that they carry out the general effect in tasteful harmony.

New and effective is the practice of fashioning shoes, handbag and belt of the same combination of materials. This is illustrated in the first picture to the right. Here you see an interesting effect created in these three costume accessories by the combination of gleaming patent leather and gabardine, one of fashion's favorite fabrics. The high-heeled slipper, suitable for dressy street and afternoon wear, is made of gabardine with patent leather trim. The capacious zipper-top handbag owes its appearance of trim smartness to the alternating bands of these same two materials. And the belt, shown at the bottom, is all gabardine with a pert little patent leather bow. These three come in colors to smartly complement your dress, coat or suit and will go far in giving you an appearance of fastidious, careful chic.

The picture at center top carries out the same idea. More frivolous and highly fashionable are these cut-out ties, created of the same interesting combination of patent leather and gabardine. In this case both the high heels and the toes are of patent leather, the rest of the shoe being gabardine. The handbag shows its close relationship to the ties inasmuch as it is made of the same two materials. The bag itself is gabardine, with handle and piping around the edges of patent. These two, in a rich shade of brown, would be highly effective with a beige costume.

The well-dressed, summery girl pictured at the extreme right is wearing one of fashion's most highly regarded ensembles—a dark, sheer dress enlivened by white hat, shoes and gloves. It is no news that white accessories are smart, for every spring and summer proves this more strongly. The shallow-crowned white sailor, edged and trimmed with patent

While the three types of shoes shown here are fairly conservative, this is not true of all of summer's foot covering. Just as hats have lost their crowns, so have shoes in many cases lost their toes, and are often just an ingenious arrangement of straps. Sandals reign supreme and appear just as often on the street as they do on the ballroom floor. Their colors cannot be too gay for smartness, and very often several shades are used in combination. Gloves, too, are bright and colorful, though white, beige and yellow will be most in evidence. Wear yellow gloves with your gray, brown or navy tailored suit, with a white blouse and a yellow nosegay on one lapel (or both, for added smartness) and you'll be sure of presenting a picture of summer chic.

Fruit, flowers and even tiny bunches of vegetables along with clips and little rhinestone or silver figures adorn the lapels of tailored suits and coats. A clever effect was achieved by a smart young woman of my acquaintance with a bunch of realistic, tiny carrots in various shades of orange and yellow, worn on the lapel of a slim, black coat. Two lapel adornments are better than one, for identical boutonnieres are one of fashion's whimsies. Then again, one may be worn at the belt, matching the nosegay on the lapel, as is shown in the lower center picture. These gay flowers are made of feathers and are delicate and enchanting in appearance. An infinite variety of materials has been utilized in the fashioning of boutonnieres—leather, beads, crisp organdie and silks, to mention a few. On a black or navy costume, nothing is more effective than an all-white bunch of violets, with perhaps a second similar decoration on the hat, especially if it is a large-brimmed model.

Scarfs we have with us on all sides. They are tied carelessly about the throat, they float romantically from hats, two or more are twisted together to make a crownless turban, and for sports and outdoor wear one large, colorful one may be tied under the chin in peasant fashion, giving the wearer a naive, childlike appearance. To wear with a sports outfit, nothing completes the picture like a silken or cotton scarf worn cowboy-fashion about the neck. Whimsical and fascinating is the one shown in the left center drawing. The covers of various popular magazines have been used for design and the effect is both interesting and gay. All sorts of amusing ideas can be incorporated into scarves—one friendly girl had her telephone number painted over and over again all over a pastel colored one; another carried out the same idea, using her first name for a design. Historical events, such as the recent coronation ceremony and the completion of the San Francisco Golden Gate bridge have been extensively pictured in silken scarves to complete lady's costume. Paisley and floral designs are also extremely popular for color accent.

Every once in a while it is a smart idea to take stock of your wardrobe with particular attention to your accessories. Do they harmonize and complement your clothes? Are they smart and up-to-the-minute? Very often a costume grown uninteresting because of repeated wearings can be given new life and verve through the addition of a new belt or bouttoniere, or a gay pair of crocheted or fabric or leather gloves. The cost of such frivolity is small, but the effect on you and your appearance is immeasurable.

Golden Color Restored To Hair

REDUCED to its simplest terms, the most important advice world-famous beauty experts can give women is "make the most of your natural charms." The skin, the hands, the hair, the eyes, all contain elements of beauty which, though hidden, can be brought to the surface with intelligent, systematic care.

Nowhere is this constant routine of beautifying more important than in the care of the hair. Without a crown of lustrous, healthy looking hair the most fastidiously groomed and fashionably gowned woman does not present a charming appearance. Drab, lifeless hair is a sartorial tragedy which must be remedied as rapidly as possible in the interests of good grooming. Such hair is difficult to arrange becomingly.

Fortunately, it is a simple matter to make any head of hair, however poor in appearance, into a thing of gleaming beauty. A systematic routine of care, with a good shampoo every week or ten days, using a special hair wash if hair is dull, will work wonders in transformation.

Daily, thorough brushing of the hair should be established and rigidly adhered to. To do this in the best possible manner, you should divide the hair into small sections. Hold up one section at right angles to the scalp, and draw a stiff bristled brush upward from the scalp to the end of the hair. This should be repeated three times with each section, and continued until you have brushed all of your hair. Do not hesitate to pull the hair, even if it does hurt a bit, for this stimulates the circulation and is most beneficial to the scalp.

A daily scalp massage is also a great aid in beautifying the hair, since good-looking tresses depend on a healthy scalp. This is simple to do and takes but a few minutes—before retiring is as good a time as any to devote to it. You place the wrists firmly on either side of the head and bury the cushion parts of the fingertips firmly in the scalp. Rotate so that not merely the fingers move, but the scalp itself moves. Now place the fingers at the nape of the neck and move them with the same rotating movement up to the crown of the head. Make this a habit and you will be rewarded a thousandfold for the time you spend thus, in the improved appearance of your hair.

Nothing is more beautiful than blond, light-colored hair. It frames the face in a soft, youthful manner and enhances the brilliance of the eyes and brings out the clear tones of the skin. Light hair, however, must gleam and hold highlights if it is to be shown off to best advantage. Very often women who are of the blond type, and perhaps all through little-girlhood had a mop of light colored hair have, because of the passage of time and improper care of the hair, found it growing mousy in color or even darker. This is unfortunate, since the coloring of the eyes and complexion remains the same, and requires blond hair to set it off.

When a woman has that shade of hair which is best described as "indeterminate," that is, in between brown or dark blond, in the majority of cases a judicious amount of lightening will work wonders. To restore the thrilling highlights and at the same time lighten the monotonous color of her hair a shade or two, makes the difference in many women be-between being "passable" and being fascinating. The special hair wash I mentioned earlier is just the thing to accomplish this, for it adds gleaming gold to blond or near-blond tresses, and consequently should be on the bathroom shelf of every woman who wishes to enhance the beauty of her hair. It has been used by fastidious women with great success for the last fifty years. It is not a dye or a bleach, since it serves only to add luster and light to the hair. Because it has a healthy, beneficial action it can be used with every shampoo with complete assurance of safety. Fastidious care of the hair is a year-round necessity, but never is this so important as during the summer months when all of us wish to look our best. Hence the sooner you start the simple beauty routine mentioned here, the sooner you will present an improved appearance to summer's dazzling sun.

Simplified Foreign Dishes

AND there is nothing new under the sun, perhaps, but there are decidedly interesting variations on old things, especially in the field of culinary art. Never need you grow bored with cooking the same dishes time and time again, and never need your family suffer from menu-monotony because you just can't think of new foods with which to vary the daily round of meals.

Those geniuses of the mixing bowl and range who develop and perfect new combinations of foods are constantly turning out practical and delicious recipes to tempt the appetite and please the palate. The woman who takes her cooking seriously and who derives great pleasure from making each meal an exciting gustatory adventure for her family and guests, is constantly on the alert for new ideas and suggestions for making the daily fare more and more interesting.

Aside from the new recipes available to all of us who care to search for them, there are always the strange and exotic foods from other lands which can be adapted to suit the American taste. Everyday ingredients are used in their fashioning, foreign though they may be, and because they have been in many cases skillfully arranged for the American housewife, they are no more difficult to prepare than ham and eggs.

To prove this, I have found two recipes for famous European dishes, all of which you will enjoy cooking and which your family will greet with great gusto. The ingredients you will have no difficulty in assembling, for all can be purchased at your neighborhood grocery and butcher shop. One, at least, you probably already have on your pantry shelf. This is cornflakes, that familiar breakfast food, so popular with every member of the family. Cornflakes, it has been discovered, adds a delicious flavor to many foods, and consequently it has been utilized in the preparation of many dishes. While it still reigns supreme as a breakfast repast, you will find, once you have started using it in cooking, that you will rely on it more and more as a necessary ingredient in many fine dishes.

Italian Spinach Is as Healthful as It Is Delicious.

I know you will want to try these recipes, and I hope you will like them as much as I do.

Italian Spinach
¾ cup milk
8 ounces packaged cheese
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
3½ cups cooked spinach
1 cup cornflakes
3 slices bacon
Heat milk and cheese in top of double boiler, stirring until cheese is melted. Add seasoning. Drain spinach thoroughly and place in casserole. Over it pour the milk and cheese mixture. Crush cornflakes slightly, mix with diced bacon and sprinkle over contents of casserole. Bake in a moderate oven for about thirty minutes.

Swedish Meat Balls
1 pound ground round steak
2 eggs
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
4 cups cornflakes
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Put meat in bowl and beat in eggs. Stir in onion, salt, pepper and milk. Crush cornflakes into crumbs and add to mixture. Mix and form into soft balls. Cook slowly until light brown, turning in fifteen minutes. When browned, remove from pan. Add milk to butter in which meat was cooked, heat and add salt and parsley. Pour this gravy over meat balls.

77 Million For A Cup—And Still Paying!

It Takes Real Money, As Well
As Skill, To Race Boats!

By Bob Edgren, Jr.

SOME PEOPLE will tell you that sport is a business. Football, tennis, baseball, even the Olympic Games, mean profits. What kind of a business would you call it when the interested parties spend $77,000,000 to win a cup?

There is a sport in which competitors have spent that much to win, and, strange to say, this sport which demands such great sacrifices has produced some of the most glaring examples of poor sportsmanship.

The pastime we refer to is yacht racing for America's Cup, a trophy which will be risked once more in a regatta beginning July 31.

Many picturesque and unusual characters have battled for this mug. One man who was a horse-car driver in New Orleans later spent $10,000,000 trying to win it; another who began his career as a barnstorming aviator put $700,000 into a cup racer this year and nearly lost his whole investment in a storm on the Atlantic.

Even though this boat did not go to the bottom, she may still turn out to be a heavy loss. Why? Well, take the case of an average cup-racing craft; Enterprise, for instance. Enterprise won the Cup regatta in 1930. She cost $700,000 then. Inside of five years she was scrapped for junk. Value, $5000.

An old cup racer is a sad sight. There used to be one at the New York Athletic Club yacht anchorage off Travers Island. The owner had bought the boat for very little, and tried to make her over into a serviceable yacht. He had partitioned the space below decks into staterooms, and had built on a trunk cabin to give extra headroom. The whole experiment was a fizzle. The boat was just not built to be useful. She was a disappointment from the start. When the writer went aboard, she had been abandoned for a year or more. The paneling was warped out of shape, and partly ripped from the stateroom walls by vandals. The lighting fixtures were smashed; the floor planking torn up; the few tattered bits of cloth remaining below were stained and mildewed. A musty smell of rotting beams and old, unaired bilge water pervaded everything below. It gave you the creeps. Up on deck, matters were no better. The seams were opening. The mast, unvarnished, was cracking open and turning white. Scraps of rusty cable, with broken wire-ends sticking out of them, lay on the planking where once nimble feet had run in answer to a racing skipper's shouted command. The deck was stained red and brown with rust, where it wasn't bleached white by the sun or turned gray by the damp.

She lay heavy in the water; not afloat . . . stuck fast in the mud to stay, like a rotting log. That was the end of a cup racer.

Now for the glory. There is a great deal of that! Perhaps you have heard how some British yachting enthusiasts suggested to friends in

New York that they bring over one of the city's crack pilot boats (pilot boats were fast sailers in those days) and try for the Hundred Guineas Cup of 1851.

The Americans thought they would do better than that. They had a small schooner built for the race. This schooner, called the America, was only 88 feet long on the waterline, but she sailed over the Atlantic to the Isle of Wight, where the race was to be held.

There was some confusion when she arrived. The first race which she might have entered was an event in which she would have had to give a time allowance to all the smaller boats. The owners, Stevens and Schuyler, didn't care for that idea, and the America didn't enter.

This left the British in a peculiar position. A boat had been built and sailed over from America to compete against them in their own waters. Yet the owners of this boat would not conform to the racing custom of that time and give handicaps. Therefore, rather than see the visitors sail home without a race, they threw the Hundred Guineas Cup race open to all entries without a time allowance to anyone.

There were three dangerous rivals for the America in this sixty-mile contest around the Isle of Wight, and all three of them were put out by accidents. The America sailed in with a tremendous lead and won the cup. Ever since that time it has been one of the established precedents in cup racing that the races are for the purpose of determining which is the better built boat as well as which one is the faster; if a mast breaks off or a sail gives way, that is just too bad for the victim.

The cup was given to the owners of the America. The last one of them to die, George L. Schuyler of the New York Yacht Club, made out a deed of gift and outlined the conditions for racing. Perhaps these conditions will explain to you why the Cup Races are held the way they are.

First, he demanded that the race be between one yacht built in the defending nation and one sition by radio, and after that was not heard from again until she finally showed up on the Atlantic coast of America under an emergency rig! She had been lost for days; the towing yacht had not returned to the radioed position but had made for port under her own power, the captain evidently figuring that the risk of trying to pick up the Endeavour II in the storm was too great.

The captain of the challenger was in a fighting mood when he arrived. Abandoned by the towing yacht, he had made the crew fix up a jury rig and rode out the storm, finally making port under sail. This proves that the cup racers—specialized though they are—can still conquer the Atlantic.

It is unfortunate that so much money is spent on a sport which as often creates ill will as anything else. The last regatta, with contenders coming in flying the foul claim flag, constant bickering before the rules committee, and many charges of unfair practice on both sides, left a bad impression. It may be hard to wipe that out. And that was not the worst case of ill feeling after a cup race!

Way back in 1895, a British syndicate headed by Lord Dunraven sent over Valkyrie III as a challenger. Months later Americans were still repeating the joke of the year: "Ain't you Dunraven yet?"

The Defender won the first race.

At the start of the second race some complicated maneuvers occurred during which Valkyrie III fouled Defender and the race committee decided that Valkyrie III should be disqualified in that race. To make matters worse, the boats sailed on, unaware of the decision, and the English boat crossed the finish line first. Even with the time allowance, the British boat won. When it was announced that the race committee had disqualified Valkyrie III, Lord Dunraven went right up in the air and he didn't come down for months.

Two days later, both boats crossed the starting line for the third race and Valkyrie III withdrew almost immediately.

Valkyrie III and Lord Dunraven went home to England. What he said became front page material, it was so hot. He didn't like American decisions and he declared that the Americans had slyly put extra ballast in their boat, which would have been cheating under the specifications. American papers immediately called him a liar and a boaster. The Prince of Wales was drawn into the battle. The Prince very wisely suggested that if the Earl was so steamed up, he ought to go back to America and demand an investigation. Dunraven did.

The investigation was thorough. It cleared the American owners and turned public opinion in both countries against Dunraven . . . who, of course, was madder than ever.

The present challenger, Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith, ought to know about air currents. He's an airplane manufacturer, and was one of the first daredevil pilots. It was in 1910 that he won a $20,000 prize for flying across the English Channel. Now he hopes that his boat will use the air currents as efficiently as the planes he builds for England's air fleet.
